

CITY PLANS TO ASK STATE AID TO FINISH PAYING HIGHWAY 41

O. C. Rollman, Former District Engineer Approved Project; Nearly Secured Help

A request that the state highway commission pave E. Wisconsin-ave from N. Meade to N. Lemnaw-st will be asked by the city of Appleton according to Mayor A. C. Rule as soon as city officials can present their case to the state body. Approval of the city's action has been given by the county board of supervisors and they will lend their moral support in an endeavor to put over the request.

Several months ago, O. C. Rollman, then district engineer of the highway commission with offices at Green Bay nearly secured state aid for the project because the road was a state and federal highway. Mr. Rollman was transferred to another district before the matter was finally settled.

In the meantime the support of Outagamie-co in the proposed paving project on Wisconsin-ave from N. Richmond to N. Meade-st was withdrawn because of the fight over taxes. The county had offered $30,000 for this project but the city-county litigation resulted in a break and withdrawal of support.

The membership of the state highway body changed during the period and the new group indicated it would disapprove routing highway 41 over Cherry and Richmond-sts and east on Wisconsin-ave. It was believed their objection was to frustrate necessity of paving for the Meade to Lemnaw-st part of the road.

The committee's specific objection was that the state could not appropriate monies for highways where houses were less than 200 feet apart but consented to turn the question over to the state's attorney. He decided an appropriation would be legal and the road could be paved.

During the winter the city decided to pave Wisconsin-ave from N. Richmond to N. Meade-st with a 37 foot pavement regardless the cost. The property holders were charged with 28 feet, the remaining nine being paid out of the general fund of the city. However, the action again brought a request for county aid.

The county board, faced with paving county highway Z on the south side the river made a new suggestion for expending the $20,000 they had once offered the city. The board's suggestion was that the money be used to pave Newberry-st from the city limits to E. John-st instead and the city approved. The county also offered to lend its support in securing state money to pave the missing link in Wisconsin-ave.

Passing of the $175,000 bond issue by the county completes its part of the agreement and as the city has already let the contract for paving Wisconsin-ave from N. Richmond to N. Meade-st all that remains to be done is get the state to pave from N. Meade to N. Lemnaw-st.

BUCKET BRIGADE SAVES BOLDT HOME

Neighbors Hurry to Scene When Burning Out Chimney Sets Fire to Roof

Timely arrival of a large crowd of neighbors probably saved the home of Edward Boldt, a farmer on Highway 47 about two miles west of the city limits, from destruction by fire about 6:30 Monday morning. The neighbors formed a bucket brigade and armed with buckets, pails and pans, they succeeded in bringing the fire under control and putting it out after a small hole had been burned in the roof.

The roof caught fire after the chimney started burning out. Neighbors in the vicinity of the Boldt farm noticed the heavy smoking and without waiting to be called they hurried to the scene, armed with utensils of all kinds for carrying water. A call was sent to the Appleton fire department for a chemical truck but before the truck arrived the fire had been put out by the bucket brigade.

THIEVES GETTING BOLD; TAKE AUTO IN DAYTIME

A Chevrolet touring car, 1923 model, was stolen from its parking place in front of Schlafer's Hardware store on W. College-ave between noon and 2:45 Sunday afternoon. The machine was black and had the 1928 license number B-101608. It is owned by Henry Wander, 1003 W. Franklin-st.

OFFER AIR RIDE FOR LARGEST ROOF SIGN

Campaign to Get Appleton Advertised from the Air, Off to Flying Start

The building owner who has the largest sign painted on his roof during the present week will be given a free airplane ride up and down the Fox River valley, according to officers of the North American Airways company. For company, he will have the building owner who has caused to be painted the most artistic and eye-catching sign.

The prizes were offered to stimulate enthusiasm in a campaign underway this week, started by the American Legion, for the purpose of getting signs painted on the roofs to guide aviators. Mayor A. C. Rule, who Saturday issued a proclamation asking for the operation of building owners in making Appleton the best advertised city, from the air, in the state, called attention to the fact that the city had been given what is to be the best airport in the state and ideal aviation service and that help toward aviation by the painting of signs would be greatly appreciated.

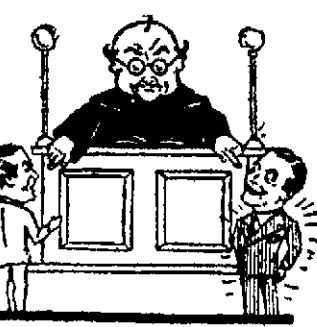

The chamber of commerce is cooperating in the campaign and Kenneth Corbett, secretary, Monday sent letters to every member asking them to assist. The matter also will be brought up before luncheon clubs during the week.

HARRY HILL GETS NEW ATTORNEY IN BATTLE FOR LIFE

Illinois Youth, Accused of Killing Mother, Prepares for New Court Fight

Ottawa, Ill., (AP)—With new attorneys and fresh hopes of gaining his freedom, Harry Hill begins another fight for his life in La Salle circuit court here April 23.

A jury some months ago deliberated nearly 70 hours on the charge of murder against the debonair, sleek-haired young man from Streator, accused of killing his elderly mother, considered wealthy by Streator standards.

Three times the jurors reported a disagreement and finally they were discharged by Judge Joe A. Davis of Princeton, who sat through the eight weeks of the trial.

Of the four attorneys who defended Hill death removed one from the case and the others withdrew, pleading ill health. A. E. Butters, Ottawa, will act as Hill's chief counsel at the retrial.

Four inches beneath the surface of her basement floor the body of Harry's mother, Mrs. Eliza A. Hill, was found last August by investigators for her divorced husband, Dr. H. C. Hill. The son was not to be found and a nation-wide hunt resulted in his arrest on the Pacific coast.

Two weeks were taken to select a jury to try him and the following six weeks of testimony were featured by the state's star witness, an old German gardener at the Hill home, Peter Busch. Stopped, gray, tireless, the laborer held the crowded courtroom spellbound as he told of being taken into the basement of the Hill home by Harry.

There on a warm August day the young man pointed to a freshly upturned plot of clay in a dark little side room.
"Pack it down well, to the level of the bricks and don't dig any farther," the gardener quoted the boy as having said.

The defense consisted principally of character witnesses. Harry denied categorically that he knew anything of his mother's death.
Her will left her $50,000 estate to him.

TALK OF FRAUD IN OIL LANDS LEASES SHIFTS TO MEXICO

Indications Are That State Departments Will Not Fight for Operators

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—Now that Ambassador Morrow and President Calles have shown how easily our oil row with Mexico might have been adjusted in the first place, we may learn soon the reason why it wasn't.

Of course, it is commonly known that the air was cleared considerably after President Coolidge caused the State Department to stop basing its Mexican policy on forged documents, but those forgeries were only a complication which was dissipated completely when Mr. Hearst and everyone else admitted that the wild documents he had published weren't genuine.

The real hotbed in the woodpile has been the question of the validity of titles acquired by some American oil men in Mexico.

That is supposed to account for the attitude of some oil interests which caused the State Department to talk sternly and threateningly to Mexico and the attitude of others who were willing to comply with the Mexican oil laws.

It has often been charged that some of the American oil concessions in Mexico had been obtained fraudulently.

If that is true, there is nothing in Mexico's oil regulations as agreed upon by Morrow and Calles which will enable the holders of invalid titles to retain property illegally acquired. The titles involved under the regulations are going to be reviewed and some of the big American oil companies may be affected.

All indications are that with Mexican-American relations as they are, the State Department will not make any desperate fights on behalf of oil interests whose fraudulent titles are thrown out by Mexican courts.

That, at least, must have been the Coolidge-Morrow attitude. The new oil regulations were not exactly a compromise; they represented an obliteration of points which might enable each nation to accuse the other of unfairness.

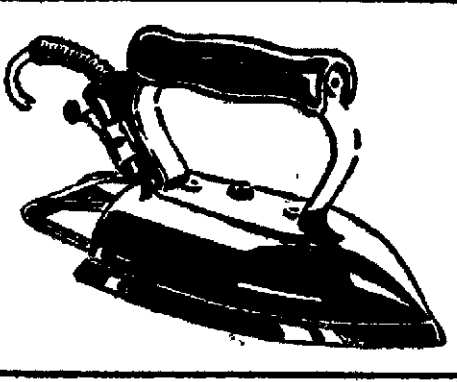

We now accept the Mexican theory of law that ownership of land does not automatically mean ownership of oil beneath the surface. Mexico agrees to liberalize interpretation of the positive act required to prove ownership of the sub-surface and to abandon the plan to limit ownership rights to 30 years, which we claimed was re-tractive and confiscatory.

The new regulations were based on a supreme court decision of a few months ago. They represented a defeat for the policy of former Ambassador Sheffield, who in a speech to the American colony in Mexico City called for a "concrete backbone" in our dealings with Mexico. Calles had previously insisted in his notes to Secretary Kellogg that the dispute be allowed to simmer until specific cases under the law had actually been decided by the Mexican courts.
It was significant that the Mexican supreme court withheld its decision until Sheffield had left and Morrow had arrived, bringing in an era of good feeling with the blessing of President Coolidge.
Now the oil companies will have to show Mexico when and how they obtained their titles. That is likely to be the next bone of troubles between Mexico and the oil companies, but probably not between Mexico and the United States.

According to statements inserted in the Congressional Record and elsewhere published, about $140,000,000 worth of oil resources—said to be about one-third the value of American oil holdings in Mexico—was turned over by the E. L. Doheny oil interests to the Standard Oil interests and is being held in escrow pending final decision of validity of the Doheny titles.
It has been reported that only $15,000,000 of the agreed price of $140,000,000 was paid to Doheny by the Standard. The Doheny titles must now be registered with the Mexican government.
"The nub of the whole Mexican question," said Senator Frazier of North Dakota last year, "lies in the fact that certain American corporations and individuals claim property in Mexico on titles of very dubious validity."

Youngsters

Dr. H. M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, spoke on "How to make athletics contribute the most to life," at the noon session of the boy's conference held Saturday at the Oshkosh high school. Dr. Wriston explained that athletics must have four dimensions, length, breadth, depth and a sense of value.

Approximately 100 boys attended the conference from Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Appleton. Appleton people attending were, Horace Davis, Robert Burns, John Lonsdorf, Dave Tretin, Chester Thiede, Chester Davis, Vincent Burgess, Volney Burgess, Carson Harwood, Orlando Skinnerud, Elmer Root, and J. W. Pugh.

Two discussion groups were held, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. Discussion group leaders were J. W. Pugh, boys' work secretary of The Appleton Y. M. C. A. Lawrence Appleton, boys' work secretary of Milwaukee, H. V. Umforth, boys' work secretary of Fond du Lac, and Warren Wright, Oshkosh, former Appleton high school teacher.

WISCONSIN WEATHER
Generally fair tonight and Tuesday, slightly colder in extreme southeast.
WEATHER CONDITIONS
The pressure is low this morning over the eastern half of the country with numerous showers reported during the past 24 hours. A crest of high pressure extends southward over the plains states from Saskatchewan to Texas, with fair and frosty weather. This high is spreading towards this section and should cause generally fair weather here tonight and Tuesday with no decided changes in temperature. Lower pressure appears to be developing west of the Rockies which may cause mild temperatures here later in the week after the high moves past.

Sanitary Precautions Do Not Effect Cancer

Madison — Neither the eating of strawberries, tomatoes or pork have anything to do with the causes of cancer.

In that simple statement the educational committee of the State Medical society of Wisconsin today exploded a common superstition that some of the common foods are cancer causes.

"It is probable that as many cases of cancer can be prevented as cured," says the bulletin of the State Medical Society.

"Unlike most other diseases against which science is waging organized warfare, there are no sanitary precautions which have any effect upon cancer. The disease occurs without reference to the habits of the environment. The rich and poor are affected alike. The ignorant and intelligent are equally victims."

"Over and over again attempts have been made to connect the causation of cancer with some article of food, either eaten to excess, insufficiently eaten, or harmful of some property which it was supposed to possess or be deficient in. Many years ago the cause of cancer was supposed to be tomatoes; later, pork; just now it is salt. When subjected to the cold analysis of science, every theory which has thus far been put forward to connect cancer with food has broken down."

"How, then, can cancer be prevented? Cancers in some locations can be prevented very simply. It is said by reliable authorities that cancer of the mouth and tongue never occur among persons who keep their breath and mouths in good and clean condition. The jagged tooth, the ill-fitting dental plate, rubs until it makes a sore which develops into cancer. Sores upon the lip may be produced by holding a hot pipe too much in one position. Cancers of the breast are believed to be due in part to stagnation of the natural secretions. Cancer of the stomach can be induced by abuse of that organ. Cancer of the uterus may result from lacerations at childbirth. Skin cancers may be caused by continual irritation of moles. The way to prevent cancers caused in any of these ways is to avoid the conditions which lead to them."

"The cancers that kill our people generally progress to a serious stage because little attention is paid to the unusual so long as it does not disable one. Report to your family physician everything unusual when you first notice it. Then if it is cancer you can secure adequate relief. Delay spells death in cancer."

Mrs. Curry Prescott of Menominee heads a committee which will look after the reception of the Rotarians' ladies. The committee is working zealously to provide entertainment with a view of making the stay of the Rotary Anns a pleasant one.

The clubs constituting the conference meeting are: Antigo, Appleton, Ashland, Clintonville, Crandon, De Pere, Eau Claire, Green Bay, Kaukauna, Kewaunee, Marion, Marshfield, Menasha, Menominee, Merrill, Neenah, New London, Rhinelander, Rice Lake, Shawano, Stevens Point, Sturgeon Bay, Wausau, Wisconsin Rapids and Marinette, Wis., Bessemer, Crystal Falls, Escanaba, Gladstone, Hancock, Houghton, Iron Mountain, Ironwood, Manistique, Marquette, Menominee and Munising, Mich.

STATE GOVERNMENT COSTS ON INCREASE

Figures Show Cost Was
$10.71 Per Capita Last Year as Compared to $6.04
in 1918

Operation and maintenance of the general departments of the state of Wisconsin cost every person in the state $10.71 last year according to a report from the department of commerce, Washington, D. C. The population of the state is given as 2,901,000 and the total cost of operation and maintenance was estimated at $31,070,324.

The total expenditures includes $5,362,872 in appropriations for education to the minor civil divisions of the state but does not include $123,459 for interest on debts during the year or $13,656,704 for outlays on permanent improvements. The latter two items make a total of $4,500,457 spent during the year, the income being derived from current revenues and the proceeds of bonds issues.

The 1927 per capita cost for operation and maintenance of the general departments is greater than the year previous when it was $9.56 and considerably greater than in 1918 when it was only $6.04.

The total revenue receipts were $46,428,373, or 16.00 per capita. This was $18,234,590 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $1,577,388 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. This excess of revenue receipts is reflected in reduction of debt, and in purchase of investments, not shown in this summary. Property and special taxes represented 35.8 per cent of the total revenue for 1927, 41.5 per cent for 1926, and 62.5 per cent for 1918. The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 47.8 per cent for 1918 to 1926, and 7.7 per cent from 1918 to 1927. The per capita property and special taxes were $6.21 in 1927, $5.81 in 1926, and $4.49 in 1918.

The net indebtedness (funded or fixed debt, less sinking fund assets) was $1,663,700, or 0.57 per capita, in 1926 the per capita net debt was $0.62, and in 1918, $0.76.

LAKE STATES FACE FORESTRY SHORTAGE WITHIN SHORT TIME

Department of Agriculture Issues Statement Telling of Seriousness of Problem

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington — Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, the three lake states which once stood foremost are confronted with as acute a problem of forest reforestation as faces any section of the country, the Foreign Service Department of Agriculture, said in a statement today.

This problem, involving the reforestation of idle and waste lands, the rehabilitation of depleted woodlands, and the protection from fire of remaining and growing timber lands, is being brought to the front in the Lake States this week in connection with the nationwide observance of American Forest Week.

The enormous quantities of lumber provided by the Lake States from 1870 until after the dawn of the twentieth century speeded up the development of the whole midwest. Today these three states are dependent upon outside sources for approximately half their own lumber needs. Minneapolis, which thirty years ago was the greatest lumber manufacturing city of the world, now has become a great inland distributing center for Pacific Coast lumber. Of the 350 billion board feet of white pine, which it is estimated the original Lake States forests contained, only about eight billion remain. These three states now pay approximately $30,000,000 in freight bills annually for lumber imported for home use from other states.

With the decline of the lumber industry, the paper industry, for which spruce, hemlock, poplar and jack pine are utilized, has grown until the Lake states district now ranks second in production of paper, following the northeastern states. An important forest problem of the region is the furnishing of more than a million cords of pulp wood annually to maintain the paper mills.

The soils of the Lake States region have demonstrated their ability to grow trees. Several million acres of cut-over and burned-over land which is not suited to agricultural use, can, in the opinion of the Forest Service, be restored to tree growing on a permanent basis. The principal measures necessary include protection from fire, planting of barren lands, and proper forest management to encourage the establishment of young growth of the best kinds of trees.

In the past few years the Lake States have made notable strides in this direction. "Selective logging" has been put into practice by a number of timberland owners, and organized fire protection has been developed in a number of localities. The Federal Government has acquired lands in Minnesota and Michigan which are gradually being restored to productivity under National Forest administration, and all three states are developing state forest lands along similar lines.

DOLLAR BILLS DON'T LAST LONG, IN YOUR POCKET OR THE BANK

Although the life of a one dollar bill in the average man's pocket is only a few hours, the note has only seven months to live after it is placed in circulation, according to local bankers. One of the larger Appleton banks returns over a thousand one dollar notes to the treasury every week. Some are renovated and placed back in circulation and others are destroyed.

Sons Save Man Who Broke Neck In Fall From Tree

After an active life of more than 40 years, Otto Mossholder, Town of Center farmer, finds looting the worst of his difficulties although he is suffering from a broken neck. It was October 8, 1927, that Mr. Mossholder sustained his injury but for several months afterwards he merely thought of it as a "sprain" something that would go away in a short time. It was not until late in February that he decided that there was more serious trouble and permitted an X-ray examination. The pictures showed several of the vertebrae to be crushed and in such a condition that physicians warned against an operation.

OTTO MOSSHOLDER

Although he has sustained an injury that in 9 cases out of a hundred results in death, Mr. Mossholder is able to get about and even does light work about his farm. He has long since found he is unable to do the heavier work. In speaking of his attempts to plow, he said that fainting and dizzy spells followed his attempts. His arms were paralyzed but the muscles in his legs responded and with a son on either side they started on their journey out of a 200-acre swamp, their path blocked by fallen timbers and thick bushes.

Their troubles were not over when they reached the edge of the swamp for there they came to a strong wire fence and, being without tools, the youths were obliged to drag the injured man under the wires. Then came a journey across a plowed field, finally reaching their automobile.

Nowhere on the entire trip, however, did the injured man suffer more than when stretched out on the back seat of the car, the last

THE CANADIAN NOBILITY

Immediately following the World War with a fine show of democracy the Canadian parliament petitioned the king that he refrain thereafter from granting to Canadians either lifetime or hereditary honors. Such is the condition throughout the monarchy of Great Britain that, instead of flying into a royal rage at this indication of the trivial value put upon nobility, the king has faithfully observed the request.

But it is difficult to live in and as part of a monarchy and not partake of all the different elements that go to make up the form of such a state. Public sentiment in Canada is still definitely opposed to the creation of hereditary titles but it is claimed that there is less opposition to the bestowal of nontransferable titles on individuals who have rendered the state conspicuous service, titles that die with the holder.

A member of the Canadian parliament has recently moved that a committee be named to inquire fully into the whole matter which seems to be a mere method of entering a wedge preparatory to withdrawing the former petition submitted to the king. Strange it is how human nature loves a distinguishing ribbon or medal on the chest or a title that may set one apart but not necessarily above, his fellowmen.

It seems that in certain classes of society in Canada people are becoming restive without the distinction of being known as Sir this or Lady that. The matter is always before the Canadian people because there are some sixty or seventy Canadians with titles, some finding it difficult to live up to them because of financial misfortune, but losing one's property is hardly as deplorable an incident in the lives of persons who crave such distinctions, as losing the title itself. They may become poor but they will remain proud to the end, whatever good it may do them.

Canadians would do well towards insuring their own future if they persisted in the position taken immediately after the war. It was the war that showed them how true democracy is the equality of all men, and they turned from the matter of titles with a wry face.

Perhaps it is not so unreasonable to grant some distinction to persons who have actually made great sacrifices for the public or the benefit of the state, but to make provision that those distinctions shall pass on from father to son, however unworthy the son may be, is trying to plant something in the Western Hemisphere that simply will not grow here. And yet the public knowledge or the official thanks that may be voted for unique services to the public should fulfill all the necessities of such an occasion. Distinctions of this nature have been practically limited in the Western Hemisphere to services performed in the army and navy. And even there the bestowal of them is a questionable right, due to the almost impossibility of bestowing them justly. Many acts of great heroism are performed under circumstances impossible to truly appraise and some distinctions have been granted as a mere matter of favoritism.

The present movement in Canada is the last stand of those who live and thrive and purr on social distinctions. But it is the last, and it will probably be futile. Intelligence is a well known Canadian trait and of too high an order to permit opening up the subject again. It will succeed about as well as an attempt to grow coffee beans in Labrador. It is just out of place in North and South America. It will become popular again when men wear lace ruffles around their ankles.

THE PRESIDENT'S "NO"

President Coolidge is not a coy and bashful maiden standing at the brink of adventure waiting to be urged into another term.

He is, as he has amply demonstrated throughout his entire public service, a man scrupulously honest, who says what he means and keeps his word. He has the courage too to say what he thinks, the kind of courage that never should be lacking in his high office.

Those who know him or have taken the time to follow his public career have not participated in any "Draft Coolidge" plans. They know that when the president said he was not a candidate in 1928 he meant just that much, no less, no more. He didn't have to emphasize it with any slapstick arguments. He is not given to wasting words. In his rather artless way he has always understood that no was the opposite of yes, and that though made up of but two letters it is a powerful word and means a lot.

Yet, so that the public may not misunderstand, whenever the occasion has arisen and men in the Republican organization have insisted in taking steps to further his renomination he has quietly, though publicly and forcibly, reiterated his stand.

The president typifies the highest standard of public service. It is a great loss to lose such men from public life, but would it not be a greater loss to lose the right to rely on their word?

MILITARY DISPLAY

Washington is seeing a good many more military maneuvers than it used to. Throughout the warm months, soldiers from nearby army posts hold exhibition drills on grounds near the White House.

This, it is said, is partly because some government officials visited England and were impressed by the way British troops went through their paces around the royal palace. Feeling that military spectacles always delight the onlookers, these officials, it is said, decided to institute something of the kind in the United States.

It's perfectly all right with us; only we do hope that Washington's bigwigs won't decide to emulate the British still further and have a detail of cavalry accompany the president wherever he goes. Our traditions are all the other way. A democratic country isn't supposed to lean quite so heavily on military displays as a monarchy.

THE STUDENT'S SUPPORT

A young man who wants to go to college is fortunate, of course, if his father has money enough to pay all of his expenses, so that he can devote all of his time to getting an education.

But it happens that the men who learn the most at college are apt to be young men who are working their own way through.

Dean Scott H. Goodnight of the University of Wisconsin, points out that fully half of Wisconsin's honor freshmen are supporting themselves. On the other hand, he says, many youths whose fathers give them ample allowances keep so busy having a good time that they acquire very little learning.

"In general," says Dean Goodnight, "I am inclined to believe that the average college boy is better off if he has to earn a part of his expenses."

A NEW SMELTING PROCESS

Often the really important news of the day goes almost unnoticed. The other day the foreign information department of the Bankers Trust Company, New York, issued a bulletin saying that a new smelting process has been discovered in Great Britain that, its inventor says, will so reduce the cost of making iron as to revolutionize the iron and steel industry in a few years.

The process, according to its inventor, will cut the cost of making iron and steel in half. One result, it is predicted, may be that England will be able to stop importing iron and steel and make all she needs at home.

It may be, of course, that this new process will develop some flaw or other that will prevent it from being effective. But if it is all that it is claimed to be, this little bulletin is one of the most significant bits of news that has appeared in a long, long time.

TOO MUCH CHATTER ABOUT TOO MUCH SPATTER

The health commissioner of New York city recently announced that respiratory infections were at their lowest prevalence. Commenting on this good news a metropolitan editor remarked that the health commissioner coupled the announcement with "the timely injunction not for this reason to avoid taking the necessary precautions to check incipient colds."

As the health commissioner is an ardent proponent of wet feet as a factor, the "necessary precautions" probably meant wearing one's rubbers and keeping one's chest protector on, these trencherous spring days.

That's about what the whole thing amounts to. A medical journal editor, referring to the same announcement, gives utterance to the pessimism that is widely spread through the medical and sanitary professions:

"The old fashioned measures of isolation and quarantine are still effective in preventing the spread of colds of all forms. However, the people almost unanimously would resent an official quarantine of cases of colds; only a few observe voluntary isolation of colds; even the campaign to 'cover coughs and sneezes' has had little effect on the public."

This medical journal editor is right about it. But why this pessimism? Well, maybe you can get a clue from another quotation from the same editorial article:

"To people are surfeited with commonplace advice to keep the feet dry and avoid draughts."

Far be it from me to inject personalities into the discussion, as the New York health commissioner said I did at our last encounter, but may I not fairly ask what the health commissioner thinks about this comment from the New York State Journal of Medicine? Can it be that the editor suspects the health commissioner's attitude on wet feet is ridiculous?

Of course the people will resent any official quarantine of "colds" as long as the health authorities assure them that some "colds" are not infectious. The health authorities take no such pessimistic and inconsistent attitude in reference to the prevention of diphtheria, or smallpox, although certain people do vigorously resist being quarantined or isolated with such disease.

The health authorities betray a weakness here. They're in an embarrassing predicament, thanks to their obstinacy, old fogeyism and dogmatism. They have incautiously committed themselves, on the wrong side of the question as everybody can now see, and they prefer to let the thing drift on, pass the buck to the public, anything rather than acknowledge that they have made a mistake.

I urge the reader to remember this when his own child comes home from school with measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diphtheria, or whatnot, contracted from some alleged "cold" the health authorities admit to school. Remember it particularly when some fustian health officer has the temerity to "warn the public" against wet feet, draughts and insufficient clothing.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Girls Should Mind the Paint

We two girls work in the office of a builder, and cans of paint stand in the room back of the office all the time. We necessarily inhale the odors of the paint constantly. Can it injure our health? The paints include enamel, flat, turpentine, benzine, varnish, shellac and white lead. (Miss F. C.)

Answer—Inhalation of turpentine, benzine and alcohol or wood alcohol (shellac) is harmful to health. The employer should provide proper ventilation to carry away the fumes.

Business Woman Likes Good Coffee

You deserve all credit . . . I have searched in vain for a really good cup of coffee, and now I can have it, for I make it myself in my own little kitchen before I start on the morning jaunt of 17 blocks to my store. I make it your way, and O boy, I thank you every morning.

Answer—The coffee you find in most restaurants, lunch counters, tea joints and the like suffers mainly from one affliction—it has a bad boil. I am glad to know that my method cured your coffee of the boil.

Dry Shampoo

What is good to use on the hair for a dry shampoo? Do you think washing the hair every week is too often? (R. W. W.)

Answer—Bran or oatmeal, to which a dash of orris root powder may be added, makes a good dry shampoo. I think it is all right to wash the scalp or hair as often as you wash other parts of the body. I wish some of these squeamish daily bathers would think this over and compose an appropriate rejoinder. The only precaution you need about daily or frequent washing of the scalp or hair is to apply a wee drop of oil after it is dry, unless the hair is too oily anyway.

The Daily Aluminum Question

Do you think aluminum was injurious to health when used in cooking utensils? (M. D. S.)

Answer—It has been used in our kitchen for years and we manage to keep pretty well, thank you. But then, I never did take seriously the hygienic advice of shady dentists and other near authorities. (Copyright John F. Dille company.)

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

DEBAUCHING AN IDEA

There are many kinds of honesty. Comparatively few people will steal money or tell lies outright. Many are dishonest in far subtler ways. Frequently they are the last to suspect that their integrity might be called in question.

A very large number of novelists are dishonest without suspecting it themselves. They debauch ideas in the interest of being "right minded" or because they have a lesson to impart or some social doctrine to preach.

I felt this very strongly with regard to a comparatively recent book by Henry Kittell Webster, "The Beginners." Webster is a competent though not a great writer. He takes his job seriously, although he also has an eye to popularity. But that need not at all interfere with good work if it is properly disciplined, and Webster usually has a firm hand on the reins. Moreover he has ideas and skill in translating them into narrative.

But he is saturated with the "success" gospel that his ideas often are strangled to death before he gets through with them. Many years ago he collaborated with Samuel Marvyn on a business novel of the time market in which "success" in the Saturday Evening Post and American Magazine sense, was the motif, and it looks as if he has never been ably wholly to eliminate the virus from his system. Business success must inevitably be the cult of the day.

In "The Beginners" Webster starts with an idea that rings true and can be instantly recognized. Edward Patterson is a 46 and he has an assured position as a cashier in a great insurance office in Chicago. But he is at a standstill professionally. His job is safe but he knows he will never get any further.

He is not a salesman and he has to be content with a modest though sure salary while the young fellows who go out into the street with their brush assurance capture the real prizes. He is in fact a failure from the world's and even his own point of view.

Circumstances catapult him into backing with his savings the invention of a weak visionary so that he has to leave his safe job in an attempt to make the invention a paying thing. He is now compelled to sink or swim.

He overcomes his constitutional distaste for salesmanship and goes into garages to sell his product himself. He discovers that he can actually sell things. The invention was fundamentally unsound and the business fails but at the last moment Edward Patterson with the assurance gained in the losing business venture, tackles a wealthy prospect and sells him $100,000 in life insurance. At the end of the book he is a "success," that is, he is a successful life insurance agent. Even at that there has been a new beginning for him.

But I am left with the impression that there is no new beginning for Henry Kittell Webster. He can write this story but no other. The stories that he writes now in middle age are determined by his mental slant of 20 years ago. He is Edward Patterson in the safe job of telling stories that are sure of a certain audience. He is not taking the chance of sink or swim that he makes his character take. He is leaving his character a failure at the end of the book.

Yet that is what a real Edward Patterson would almost inevitably have been. I for one beg to doubt that that kind of a man constitutionally lacking in capacity for salesmanship, could be translated into a crack life insurance agent in a few months' time. Webster's idea of what a story should be that he would almost inevitably have been. I for one beg to doubt that that kind of a man constitutionally lacking in capacity for salesmanship, could be translated into a crack life insurance agent in a few months' time. Webster's idea of what a story should be that he would almost inevitably have been.

Not that there aren't plenty of examples of success at 45 or at 60 for that matter, but it is success in the direction of the person's desires or ambitions. A man devoid of artistic instinct will not be translated into a great salesman. That happens only in second rate stories.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

PNEUMONIA, BRONCHITIS

SECOND AS DEATH CAUSE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Infections of the lungs and of the breathing tract are no new thing to human beings. They were carefully noted by physicians long before the Christian era.

The changes that take place in the lungs in pneumonia were carefully recorded by a Bohemian pathologist named Rokitsansky at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Bronchitis, which is limited to the inflammation of the tubes that carry the air into the lung tissues, was differentiated from pneumonia more than a hundred years ago. Today pneumonia and the inflammations of the breathing tract are the second largest cause of death all over the temperate zone.

CLIMATE COUNTS

Many scientific studies have been made to find out whether or not climatic conditions are responsible for the incidence of this type of disorder. A well known British epidemiologist has recently concluded that a drop in the temperature below the normal for the season of the year is likely to be associated with an increased number of deaths from such diseases.

In London studies have been made to find out just how the fogs may be associated with deaths from bronchitis and pneumonia. Leonard Hill, the noted British physiologist, is convinced that smoke and fog interfere with the passage of sunlight and are thus directly associated with increased mortality.

Records kept for hundreds of years of climatic changes and of the incidence of fog have been studied in relation to the number of deaths from respiratory diseases.

There are so many factors involved that it is difficult to draw definite conclusions, but recent studies again seem to show that sudden changes in temperature are more certainly related to bronchitis and pneumonia than the incidence of smoke and fog.

TREATMENT

One of the main features of these diseases is that they are most fatal in old age and in youth. For this reason records of various kinds of treatment must always be studied in relation to the ages of the persons treated.

Nowadays the most important factor in recovery from pneumonia is skillful nursing. In London during 1920, as recorded by Epidemiologist Hilda Woods, only 18 per cent of 5315 deaths from pneumonia occurred in hospital and nursing homes, and 22 per cent in poor-law institutions, whereas 60 per cent of the deaths occurred in patients treated without special nursing at home.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—In the mid-Sixties there's a school where, after the beat of the bong, you'll find the little Lord Fauntleroy and Little Evase of the show world. Here the "professional" youngsters go to learn their sunda and their geography. But when road shows have taken them pretty well over the map and they've had to figure up the income from 24 weeks of vaudeville, it can readily be seen that they need little training in these lines.

Listening in on what should be childish chatter, you will learn how actors get that way. Already they are talking about rehearsals and roles they play; already they are beginning to lie about the salaries received and the length of their engagements.

Unlike other youngsters, they do not have to be in their classrooms at nine. Since many of them have not been tucked into bed until about midnight of the previous evening, the school bells ring at 10 o'clock. When the children are rehearsing there is an automatic regulation that lets them be absent at various hours. Making out have to appear until noon and can get away as early as 2 p. m.

Most of them are children of stage people, and you are just as likely to meet the small son of a celebrated classic tragedian as the daughter of an equally celebrated top dancer. The son of the clown, by the way, sees his father about two months out of the year, a not uncommon circumstance with Manhattan's stage world people.

A number of Broadway's very promising players have come out of this school for professional children. Raymond Hackett, Helen Chandler, Lila Lee, and Billy Janney are but a few of the well known names that once appeared on this school's roster.

It's quite the most unusual schoolroom in the city. The recess hour brings forth a babble of information about Broadway managers, new plays and such. Frequently a youngster will be just about to complete a course when the call to the road sounds and the pupils' off with a play.

One teacher told me that last season a class shrunk from 15 to 6 in the course of a few weeks. The same teacher tells me that the discipline of the theater makes them particularly amenable to classroom discipline. There is no permanent during study hours. Many may still be hearing the echoes of applause earned just the night before, and still go about the school day most modestly.

The hallyho artists of Manhattan for many a year have made the downtown waterfront skyline the symbol of New York. Thanks to the movies and the magazine sections of Sunday newspapers, the average citizen looks upon this stone pile as the last word in skyscraper achievement. As a matter of fact the styles in skyscrapers change as often as style in clothes.

Hardly a week passes but some new flourish and twist is given to the architecture of the height of the buildings. Standing at any high point in Central Park the new peaks of the apartment house belt offer a breath-taking sight not to be duplicated within Manhattan's limits. In the Wall Street belt, only the Woodworth building holds its distinctive place in the clouds.

One passes the Manhattan tower with a sigh. What once was a proud boast, now is almost lost in a maze of giant structures. The Flatiron building, once an outstanding attraction, now gets a public apology. About Columbus Circle the new Broadway continues and leaves Times Square wondering how long it can cling to its old legends. There are at present nearly 400 skyscrapers in New York and nearly 2000 that climb to 10 stories or higher.

CHAPTER XLIX
 (Tuesday, September 1; 1 p. m.)
 Vance awoke late the following morning and spent the hour or so before lunch checking a catalogue of ceramics which were to be auctioned next day at the Anderson Galleries. At one o'clock he entered the Stuyvesant Club and joined Markham in the grill.

"The lunch is on you, old thing," said Vance. "But I'll make it easy. All I want is a rasher of English bacon, a cup of coffee, and a croissant."

Markham gave him a mocking smile.

"I don't wonder you're economizing after your bad luck of last night."

Vance's eyebrows went up.

"I rather fancied my luck was most extraordinary."

"You held four of a kind twice, and lost both hands."

"But, y' see," blandly confessed Vance, "I happened to know both times exactly what cards my opponents held."

Markham stared at him in amazement.

"Quite so," Vance assured him. "I had arranged before the game, d'ye see, to have most particular hands dealt." He smiled. "I can't tell you, old chap, how I admire your delicacy in not referring to my rather unique guest, Mr. Allen, whom I had the bad taste to introduce so unceremoniously into your party. I owe you an explanation and an apology."

"Mr. Allen is not what one would call a charming companion. He is deficient in the patrician elegance, and his display of jewelry was a bit vulgar—though I infinitely preferred his diamond studs to his plebeian tie."

"But Mr. Allen has his points—decidedly he has his points. He ranks with Andy Blakely, Canfield, and Honest John Kelly as a door soldier of fortune. In fact, our Mr. Allen is none other than Doc Wiley Allen or fragment memory."

"Doc Allen! Not the notorious old crook who ran the Eldorado Club?"

"The same. And, incidentally, one of the cleverest card manipulators in a once lucrative but shady profession."

"You mean this fellow Allen stacked the cards last night?" Markham was indignant.

"Only for the two hands you mentioned. Allen, if you happen to remember, was the dealer both times. I was purposely sat on his right, was careful to cut the cards in accordance with his instructions, and you really must admit that no stricture can possibly attach to my deception, inasmuch as the only beneficiaries of Allen's manipulations were Cleaver and Spotswood. Although Allen did deal me four of a kind on each occasion, I lost heavily both times."

Markham regarded Vance for a moment in muted silence, and then laughed good naturedly.

"You appear to have been in a philanthropic mood last night. You practically gave Mannix a thousand dollars by permitting him to double the stakes on each draw. A rather quixotic procedure, I should say."

"It all depends on one's point of view, don't y' know. Despite my financial losses—which, by the bye, I have every intention of charging up to your office budget—the game was most successful. . . . Y' see, I attained the main object of my evening's entertainment."

"Oh, I remember," said Markham vaguely, as if the matter, being of slight importance, had for the moment eluded his memory. "I believe you were going to ascertain who murdered the Odell girl?"

"Amazin' memory! . . . Yes, I let him hint that I might be able to clarify the situation today."

"And whom am I to arrest?"

Vance took a drink of coffee and slowly lit a cigarette.

"I'm quite convinced, y' know, that you won't believe me," he returned, in an even, matter-of-fact voice. "But it was Spotswood who killed the girl."

"You don't tell!" Markham spoke with undisguised irony. "So it was Spotswood! My dear Vance, you positively howl me over. I would telephone Heath at once to polish up his handcuffs, but, unfortunately, miracles—such as strangling persons from across town—are not recognized possibilities in this day and age. . . . Do let me order you another croissant."

Vance extended his hands in a theatrical gesture of exasperated despair.

"For an educated, civilized man, Markham, there's something down-right primitive about the way you cling to optical illusions. I say, y' know, you're exactly like an infant who really believes that the magician generates a rabbit in a silk hat, simply because he sees it done."

"Now you're becoming insulting."

"Rather!" Vance pleasantly agreed. "But something drastic must be done to disentangle you from the Lorelei of legal facts. You're so deficient in imagination, old thing."

"I take it that you would have me close my eyes and picture Spotswood sitting upstairs here in the Stuyvesant Club and extending his arms to 71st street. But I simply couldn't do it. I'm a commonplace chap. Such a vision would strike me as ludicrous; it would smack of a hashish dream. . . . You yourself don't use Cannabis indica, do you?"

"Put that way, the idea does sound a bit supernatural. And yet: Certain est quia impossible est. I rather like that maxim, don't y' know; for, in the present case, the impossible is true. Oh, Spotswood's guilty—no doubt about it. And I'm going to cling tenaciously to that apparent hallucination."

"Moreover, I'm going to try to lure you into its toils; for your own—as we absurdly say—good name is at stake. As it happens, Markham, you are at this moment shielding the real murderer from publicity."

Vance had spoken with the easy assurance that precludes argument; and from the altered expression on Markham's face it could be seen he was moved.

"Tell me," he said, "how you arrived at your fantastic belief in Spotswood's guilt?"

Vance crushed out his cigarette and folded his arms on the table.

"We begin with my quartet of possibilities—Mannix, Cleaver, Lindquist and Spotswood. Realizing, as I did, that the crime was carefully planned with the sole object of murder, I knew that only some one hopelessly ensnared in the lady's net could have done it. And no sutor outside of my quartet could have been thus enmeshed, or we would have learned of him. Therefore, one of the four was guilty."

"Now, Lindquist was eliminated when we found out that he was bed-ridden in a hospital at the time of Skeel's murder; for obviously the same person committed 'the crime.'"

"But," interrupted Markham, "Spotswood had an equally good alibi for the night of the Canary's murder. Why eliminate one and not the other?"

"Sorry, but I can't agree with you. Being prostrated at a known place surrounded by incorruptible and disinterested witnesses, both preceding and during an event, is one thing; but being actually on the ground, as Spotswood was that fatal evening, within a few minutes of the time the lady was murdered, and then being alone in a taxi cab for fifteen minutes or so following the event—that is another thing. No one, as far as we know, actually saw the lady alive after Spotswood took his departure."

"But the proof of her having been alive and spoken to him is incontestable."

"Granted, I admit that a dead woman doesn't scream and call for help, and then converse with her murderer."

"I see," Markham spoke with sarcasm. "You think it was Skeel, disguising his voice?"

"Lord no! What a priceless notion! Skeel didn't want anyone to know he was there. Why should he have staged such a masterpiece of idiocy? That certainly isn't the explanation. When we find the answer it will be reasonable and simple."

"That's encouraging," smiled Markham. "But proceed with your reasons for Spotswood's guilt."

"Three of my quartet, then, were potential murderers," Vance resumed. "Accordingly, I requested an evening of social relaxation, that I might put them under the psychological microscope, as it were."

"Although Spotswood's ancestry was wholly consistent with his having been the guilty one, nevertheless, I confess I thought that Cleaver or Mannix had committed the crime; for, by their own statements, either of them could have done it without contradicting any of the unknown circumstances of the situation."

"Therefore, when Mannix declined your invitation to play poker last night, I put Cleaver to the first test. I wig-wagged to Mr. Allen, and he straightway proceeded to perform his first feat of prestidigitation."

UNCLE SAM'S AIRMEN MAKING HISTORY IN FAR OFF NICARAGUA

Airplanes Used for Carrying Wounded, Delivering Pay and Dropping Orders

Managua, Nicaragua — While the United States is cheering the victorious crew of the Bremen for their epochal flight across the Atlantic, Uncle Sam's unsung heroes of the air continue to face death in Nicaragua and make big strikes toward the military and commercial development of the airplane with little or no attention being paid to them.

They comprise the Marine Corps aircraft squadron under command of Major R. E. Rowell, and they have opened great vistas for future warfare, but in other uses.

Briefly, here is the air record of Major Rowell's squadron of 12 planes in the "war" with Sandino, the rebel chieftain:

In 11 months they have flown 5000 hours, fired 90,000 rounds from machine guns, dropped 300 bombs, engaged the enemy 61 times, been struck by rebel fire 69 times, have lost one plane and have suffered two casualties.

The latter were Second Lieutenant Earl Thomas and Sergeant Frank E. Dowdell, pilots, who were forced down by enemy fire in a hostile country and never returned. Sandino deserters say they were surrounded and killed after a desperate battle.

For the first time in history, the marine flyers have attacked fortified military positions. Swooping down on Sandino strongholds they have rained a deadly baptism with machine guns and 17-pounders.

In all, they have gone through the stiffest fighting since the World War. PLANES AS AMBULANCES

In an hour, big transport planes have carried sick and wounded men out of the jungles to hospitals. By ox-cart, the only other means of transportation, the same journey would require from two to three weeks.

Transportation has been revolutionized by planes. Food, clothing, ammunition and supplies are transported at the rate of 1000 pounds per trip.

Fastness is impossible in the tropical forests, but all sorts of supplies and messages are dropped to ground troops. The latter signal back up by means of long strips of white canvas, laid upon the ground.

A weighted stick, flying a long white streamer, brings instructions, mail or messages from aloft.

When it is desired to pick up a written message from the ground, this is done by means of a hook dangling from a plane. The hook grabs a line, extended between two poles, to which the message is tied.

PAY DROPPED FROM PLANES

Even pay day isn't overlooked under the system. More than $200,000 has been dropped from planes for the men and for the purchase of supplies and not one cent has ever been lost.

Water in leather bags or canteens, cigarettes, food and even guns have been dropped from the air.

A common housefly stood between Major Rowell and death during the bombing of El Chipote. Major Rowell's motor sputtered and almost failed over the heart of the enemy country. Then it righted. Next day, when his motor was overhauled at Managua, mechanics found a dead fly in the carburetor.

The oldest bell in Europe is the largest of those in the Town Steeple of Lanark, G. C. (Edinburgh). It once hung in the old church of St. Kentigern, Lanark.

GOVERNOR WORKS HARD TO BRING GERMAN PLANE

Madison — (AP)— Governor Fred R. Zimmerman has telegraphed to the German embassy in Washington and to the North German Lloyd steamship Co. in New York asking their cooperation in inducing the German trans-Atlantic liners to come to Wisconsin.

He pointed out that Wisconsin has "had the honor and pleasure of entertaining Baron von Moltke and Count von Luckner" and now wished to entertain Baron von Huenefeld and Captain, Herman Koehl. "All Wisconsin and certainly our German citizens here will give these heroes a royal reception," the governor's telegram read.

He has already telegraphed the fliers, care of Mitchell field, that he would like to meet them at some point outside the state and fly to Madison with them.

The expression "the games" not worth the candle" arose when candles were expensive and card playing for money was prevalent.

BANKING INSTITUTIONS SHOW $9,407,521 INCREASE

Increase of $5,407,521 in total resources of state and mutual savings banks and trust companies of Wisconsin during the last year was disclosed in the report issued today by C. F. Schwabner, commissioner of banking.

This report, showing conditions at the close of business on Feb. 28, 1928, was compared with a previous one on Dec. 31, 1927, revealing an increase of $5,145,901 in resources during the two intervening months.

Total resources were $42,816,004.49 on Feb. 28, according to Schwabner's report.

Savings accounts were decreased $7,756,115.23 in January and February, dropping from $180,461,497.78 to $172,708,382.50. At the same time checking accounts were increased $11,537,582.96, making their total $180,754,043.80.

Good Taste Lacking In Modern Age?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A WOMAN who lived in a modern press-the-button apartment spent a weekend with some relatives of her husband's at a country place in southern Pennsylvania. It was interesting to get her reaction to primitive living. "You'd think you were in a book," she told the bridge club. "The house spreads all over the place—big halls, little halls, nooks and corners and closets everywhere and fireplaces big enough for a barbecue. "But can you imagine? They haven't an electric wire in the whole house and not a gas-pipe. Just oil-lamps, everywhere. When you go to bed at night they hand you a candle. "Some of the wall-paper has been on for thirty-five years; think of it! And the floors are made of boards, a foot wide, all rough and uneven. There are no such things as radiators—only big logs in the fireplaces downstairs and coal in the bedrooms. "It's a perfectly beautiful place, or would be, if the Trustees just had a little money and a little taste to fix it up. I wish I had it. I'd soon make it a real home. "Her husband had come in during the recital and stood in the doorway listening to his loquacious wife. "But at the last words he laughed heartily. "Where did you get the idea that the Trustees were poor, Bee?" he asked. "They could buy and sell me a hundred times. I thought you knew they were rather well-heeled with money. They like the house the way it is. "They prefer the old-fashioned way of living. I happen to know that Aunt Margaret is a connoisseur on decorating and she is known for her remarkable taste. That wall-paper is priceless, almost. Why change it when it isn't even soiled?" "Really?" gasped his wife. "Then why—" "It is not necessary to repeat what he said, but we can guess. All this modernism, although convenient, often is ugly because it is mechanical. People who won't live in a house because it hasn't hardwood floors, or steam radiators—well, we wonder what they would have done before either of them were known. Or electric lights or tile baths? Was there no such thing as good taste in the old days? "If our great-grandmothers were to come back, we can well imagine them turning up their noses at our new ideas.

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Marye, my dear: The kind of lecture you need is a good one from Alan on extravagance. Thirty dollars to listen to a Swami—whatever they are—preach a lot of nonsense about love! I never heard of such foolishness. Frank told me that Genevieve went to one of those lectures when she was in the city last fall and that she hasn't been normal since. Always talking about soul matings and some mysterious power of attracting affinities. It looks to me as if she doesn't know what real love is and I only hope that Frank isn't in love with her. He never says anything about that. There is some excuse for a girl like Genevieve when she gets excited over a lot of crazy cults and 'isms because she hasn't yet "found" herself, as some of your friends would say. But how a young woman who is happily married to a respectable man can take an interest in such things is beyond my comprehension. You may be sure that husbands never appear to their wives as spiritual lovers, Marye. And when you turn away from the realities of life to seek diversion and thrill in the teachings of a person who has nothing in common with you and your mode of life you will find yourself in trouble. I suppose you didn't think of Alan while you were being "transported"—that's what Genevieve says the Swami did for her—into the "realm of love eternal." An everyday, money-grubbing husband would have been "out of the picture," I imagine. But just remember Marye, that you wouldn't have been there in one of your pretty dresses and nice accessories if you hadn't a husband like Alan. Real men may not be as romantic as you'd like them but they deserve better than to work for money their wives spend to hear someone tell them how to attract a lover. And instead of thinking of having your portrait painted, you'd better make the first payment on a house. Lovingly, MOM.

NEXT: Billy is vamped.

THE black birds sailed out through the air and Scotty shouted, "Have a care! The seat on this one is none too safe. It gives me quite a fight. If one bird opens up its bill, the vine will drop and we will spill. We're riding so high in the air, we'd fall right out of sight." "That's very true," said Coppy, "but I'm sure they'll keep their big bills shut. I wonder where they're taking us. Perhaps just for a ride. I like this trip. I must admit it doesn't frighten me one bit." Then Clowdy broke right in. "Just look ahead of us," he cried. "A mountain top is plain as day and we are heading right at it. We'll surely crash against it if the birds don't rise a bit." The Times then began to groan. The mountain top was made of stone. They realized that it would be an awful place to hit. "I'm scared to look," one Tiny cried. "We're almost at the mountain's side."

High School Girl Only Woman Plumber In U.S.

Tulsa, Okla.—Feminism has chalked up another victory in Tulsa. A 17-year-old girl has invaded a 100 per cent masculine line of work. Evelyn Middleton has become a plumber. Evelyn, reporting seems to have less bite in it than getting down to brass pipes. "There is so much gusto in a trade like plumbing. One is in and out so much life stays interesting. And there's such real joy in working with one's hands. I think too many women miss the vim that comes from doing manual things." During her last two years in school Evelyn has men on the job, carrying supplies to and from the work, has often stepped in and helped complete a job in order to get it ready on contract time, and in addition has attended to the collections of her father's business.

But there's nothing masculine about this vivacious girl. Clothes, social life and other things feminine are of utmost interest to her. When she does her overall, she sees no reason why she should lay aside her compact. Her hair is kept as neatly curled when being a water system to a new house as when attending a dance. "I'm so funny," Evelyn says. "They are always asking me if I expect to be a plumber as if a girl couldn't be perfectly natural and still lay pipes. Of course I do. "But I'd never fall in love with a man who didn't understand why I like my trade. I think all girls should have something interesting to do in life besides just getting married. And I expect I'll find a man someday who agrees with me."

Household Hints

- PAINTED SCREENS—Before hanging up the screens they should be brushed thoroughly and the frames re-painted. All hinges should be oiled thoroughly at the same time.
- COOKING APPETITES—If children's appetites lag in the spring, try a new, colorful cup, saucer and plate for them. They will take their milk more readily if it is served in a pretty little pitcher and they are allowed to pour it out.
- TEA STAINS—Ice-tea stains can be removed from linen by soaking the stain as soon as possible in Javelle water and then pouring boiling water through it.
- BRIGHT CORNER—You sometimes can brighten up a dull corner by proper placing of mirrors to catch the light or by adding some lively orange, scarlet and lemon colored pillows to a corner sofa.
- SPRING ATTIRE—House work is less dreary in spring if the housewife makes herself some bright orange or scarlet smocks or house-dresses. The pleasure they give far outweighs the cost.

WOMEN IN EAST PROGRESSING NOW

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York—"Women in the Near East and Orient today are about as far along in their political and economic independence as the women of Europe were when feudalism was abandoned," according to Marguerite Harrison, author, who has spent the past three years in various parts of the east studying Asiatic after-the-war conditions. "And they surely will follow the course of their western sisters," said she, "except that it will not take them nearly as long. Take Turkey, for instance. Women under the new constitution have been allowed equal rights with men, women in government employment have been forced to abandon the veil, and every effort is made to induce all the women of the country to follow their example. "The harem has been abolished and not long ago the municipal council of Trabzon passed a regulation rendering the abandonment of the harem trousers compulsory for women. To be sure, it almost caused the disruption of the city administration, and the ladies continue to wear their trousers. "On the other hand, in Constantinople and Ankara the women are very progressive. Fancy a contest held publicly, in Constantinople, for charity, to determine the possessor of the prettiest pair of feminine legs. Yet this actually occurred there in 1925. "Those of us who imagine that the women of Turkey, Arabia and Persia live gilded lives of ease in the harems, simply don't know anything about harems, she said. "In India, women are still veiled, and very much in the background, but there are some excellent women writers there, and a few women doctors and nurses. About the same condition prevails in China, except that the Chinese woman, after she has sons, becomes very important and practically rules the home. "Japanese women are very progressive, and here we find some stenographers and many women studying professions. "NO CHANCE IN POLITICS "China, Japan and India all have some factories and are being developed industrially, so that there is employment for women now in factories. In practically no part of the Orient is there any electoral government, such as we have, and there is little opportunity for men or women to take much part in politics. So the intellectuality of women politically does not have its particular significance. "Economic pressure doubtless will make it necessary for the oriental woman to be self-supporting as it has for the western life in Asia is bound to change and to progress, and women are bound to play an important part."

Happiness For Children Says Child Poet's Parent

NATHALIE CRANE AND HER MOTHER

Editors Note—This is the first of a series of five articles written for the Appleton Post-Crescent and NEA Service by the mothers of famous children. As their part in the observance of National Child Health Day on May 1, they disclose their principles of child training. BY MRS. THELMA CRANE, Mother of Nathalie Crane, Child Poetess. Our rule for bringing up Nathalie Crane has been to make her happy. We never have considered encouraging or discouraging temperament in her, for we believe she has an even disposition. But we were old-fashioned, and she answered in the same language. Even now we are thankful that she likes fatherly and motherly petting. We have changed all so-called psychological programs. GOOD, PLAIN FOOD Nathalie's diet has been good, plain American food and plenty of it. She eats a limited amount of candy and a great deal of honey. Her hours always have been regular. Although she now is fourteen years old and a student at Brookline Heights Seminary, she gets up early goes to bed early and has her meals on schedule. Even when she is writing poetry, she remembers her regular duties and obligations. Nathalie began to write at nine but from five years on, she used to chant and improvise lines in meter. Of course she wants solitude and freedom from minor interruptions while she is working, but that is a requirement of any writer. LIKES CAMP LIFE I believe that plenty of exercise and fresh air are necessary for the development of both the physical and mental health of the child. Nathalie is an expert swimmer and an ordinary tennis player, but wildly in love with summer camp life. We never urge Nathalie to write nor do we interfere in any way with her work. We answer frankly her questions about life, but do not attempt to thrust information upon her.

Women, to Look Well, You Must Be Well

Rochester, Minn.—"I am always glad to speak a good word for Dr. Pierce's remedies, especially the 'Favorite Prescription,' because I have taken it and know about it from my own experience. Your Question And Its Answer

By J. A. Panneck, D. C. PALMER CHIROPRACTOR

QUESTION—My daughter has not felt well since she had scarlet fever some months ago. I have noticed that her child is swollen. Do you think she is in for another siege of Scarlet Fever?

ANSWER—The swelling in the eyelids strongly indicates a chronic Nephritis which frequently follows Scarlet Fever and at any time might become acute, making a serious condition very probable. You should immediately take this girl to your nearest competent Chiropractor.

QUESTION—What can be done for pain that started some months ago in my back and is now so bad in my right leg that I can only get around on crutches?

ANSWER—You started with Lumbago that has now become Sciatica, the former being the forerunner of the latter. Your Chiropractor will readily find and prove to you that a vertebral interference with a nerve is causing all your trouble. Stay under his care daily and you will find that you can throw your crutches away in a short time.

QUESTION—Do you think my liver is bad because I frequently bring up mouthfuls of water that tastes bitter?

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

There is nothing more important for a Declarer to learn than to plan properly and for that reason this "Planning" series has been continued for some time. Three more such hands will be given this week which will conclude the series; after which, a different type of Auction Bridge articles will appear.

How should the Declarer plan to play this hand, with a Spade contract?

Of course there is nothing for Declarer to do but follow suit on the first trick and wait for the second. Assuming that west continues to lead Clubs (and shiftings suits is about as dangerous for an adversary of the Declarer as swapping horses crossing

CARD PARTIES

Tables will be arranged for bridge and schafkopf at the open card party given for the benefit of the Shamrock troop of girls scouts of St. Mary church at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at Columbia hall. Mrs. T. J. Long will be chairman of the committee in charge of the party.

An open bridge, dice and schafkopf party will be given at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the Appleton Women's club by the basketball team of the club. Miss Evelyn Meyers, Miss Agnes Vanneman, Miss Lorraine Green and Miss Birdie Steiner will have charge of the party.

thus the Clubs suit after that because they can see that Dummy could trump and give Closed Hand a discard; they probably will lead Hearts. In that event Declarer would win with the Ace, lead four rounds of Trumps hoping for the probable 4-3 adverse distribution which would enable him to exhaust the adverse trumps. Declarer then would lead his Diamond overtake the last Diamond from Closed Hand in Dummy, cash Dummy's thirteenth Diamond and thus make game.

SCIENTISTS WORK ON LATEST ANEMIA CURE

Find Copper Will Cure Rats and Now They Try it on Humans

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin General hospital on the state university campus, has started experiments to determine nutritive value of copper to humans following the discovery of its properties in curing anemia in rats. This latter property was discovered by Professors D. B. Hart and Harry Steenbock of the state's school agricultural chemistry department.

Dr. W. S. Middleton of the General Hospital will have charge of the experiments into the availability of the discovery to humans. In other institutions over the country—in Boston, Detroit, Chicago and other cities, other doctors will carry on the same work.

"We are choosing hospitals where physicians are competent to give us the scientific data on patients and their conditions," Hart explained. The Simpson Memorial building at Ann Arbor, Mich., is among those to investigate the value of the compounds for curing anemia in human beings. The Simpson hospital, established by a woman whose husband died of anemia, does considerable experimental work on various types of anemia.

In the white rats, anemia induced experimentally with a controlled diet, was practically cured in two weeks, with rats completely recovered in six weeks, but no estimate has been made of the time needed for the remedy, if it proves to be one, to effect humans.

Prof. Hart points out that only the anemia in children, fed solely on milk, corresponds to the anemia induced in the rats.

Anemia in adult human beings is probably far different, he says, with the many conditions that enter into their diet and living.

The disease is characterized by a reduced number of red corpuscles in the blood. Since copper and iron salts rebuild the hemoglobin that makes up these corpuscles, Prof. Hart and Steenbock will continue their search for foods that contain these salts.

Yellow corn, liver and ash of lettuce have in them this newly found curative compound, they discovered.

The copper cure was found by the experimenters while they were tracing the iron content of milk and its effect upon anemia. With the discovery, the enigma of why pure iron did not achieve results, why iron of a biological source, which contains copper, was explained.

Experiments went on for more than four years with C. A. Evehjem and J. Waddell, chemists in the college of agriculture, assisting.

STUDENTS TO HAVE MOTHERS AS GUESTS

Big Program at Madison Being Prepared for Annual Event to Be Held in May

Madison—(AP)—Many affairs are being planned for the annual Mothers' Week celebration at the University of Wisconsin. Helen Keeler, Chicago, is director of the plans for this year's welcoming of mothers. It will take place on May 18, 19 and 20.

"The 'Senior Swing-out' in which white-dressed senior girls 'swing out' to give interpretive pageantry before the visiting mothers is the first event of the program in the evening of May 18. This is followed by 'Dance Drama'.

On Saturday morning the mothers are expected to attend classes with their sons and daughters. That afternoon women's field day will take most of the afternoon and President Glenn Frank will hold a reception for the visiting mothers. In the evening "dance drama" is to be repeated.

Special services in all University churches are planned for Sunday morning. That afternoon the University band is to give a concert for the students and mothers.

Miss Keeler said today that she and her committee helpers are "planning the program in an attempt to show our mothers just what we, here at Wisconsin are doing and what we hope to do."

Coincident with announcement of the celebration for the mothers came an announcement of the appointment by the athletic board of Flannery Woolford, Wauwatosa as chairman for the 1934 homecoming, which will probably be held during the weekend on which Wisconsin plays Chicago. He is head of the committee that put on the bonfire celebration for the 1932 homecoming has been connected with celebrations of fathers day and mothers day, has been manager of the freshman basketball team, assistant general chairman for the prom and has been in other extra-curricular activities.

The 1934 homecoming will center in the new Memorial Union building, which is now nearing completion.

It is estimated that the minimum cost of "producing" a man of 21, is $2,500, which includes parental and governmental expenditures.

ANNOUNCE DATE FOR SOCIAL WORK MEET

Variety of Subjects Will Be Discussed at Gathering in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(P)—How far is a community responsible for the human welfare of its citizens—and how may it best accept that responsibility. These are two questions which leaders in social betterment work throughout the state will attempt to answer when they meet in Milwaukee Oct. 2-5, under the sponsorship of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work.

By its own name the objective of the meeting is defined—a Conference on Community Responsibility. It will approach its problem from six phases, the social question, industrial needs, recreation provision for the community, a children, the family as a social unit, and the individual citizen. At a preliminary session in the state and nation for the week in each of the six fields will present to the conference their interpretation of the problems. These sessions will not, however, be continued addresses by a few men. Six sections will be formed, one in each of the problems under consideration. The morning hours will be devoted to each section to hearing reports, papers read, and a discussion in which all attending are to take part. Further discussion will feature the afternoon meetings, in which each section splitting into smaller or sub-sections to consider in more detailed fashion special phases of the particular problem it is studying.

No mere academic discussion of these questions is the purpose of the conference. It plans, according to Andrew Williams, general secretary of the social work group, to provide a clearing-house in which the actual needs of the community may be presented by those familiar with them. It hopes to serve as the medium through which findings made in the social laboratories are transmitted into the fabric of the community's daily life.

It will consider the background within which it must do it, and by bringing its roots deep in the soil of the community resources and needs, it will be one of vital significance to actual social work in the state. In other words, those taking part in the conference will attempt to discover what advantages and disadvantages community life now possesses for the advancement of human welfare, and will try to discover what should be added or taken away for the promotion of such welfare.

TUG MAKES USE OF CANAL LOCKS HERE

The second boat to pass through the Appleton locks this year was the tug Menasha, which came up the river from Kaukauna where it had been in dry dock during the winter for repairs.

The tug was bound for Marshfield to get the dredge. When en route it hit a rock in the river and was damaged. It is now in dry dock for repairs.

CITY BUYS MATERIAL FOR SEWER PROJECTS

The city of Appleton has purchased material for the construction of the sewer system in the city. The material includes pipe, manholes, and other necessary equipment. The project is part of a larger plan to improve the city's sanitation and public health.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 29 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty. You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without gripping. How much better you feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

KAUKAUNA COUNCIL SEEKS ANSWER FOR
GARBAGE PROBLEMAldermen Determined to Find
Solution for Trouble That Has Bothered for Long Time

Kaukauna—Arrangements will be made by the city council soon for the disposal of garbage in the city. This has been quite a problem for some number of years and the aldermen are confident that it will be solved this summer.

A report of Ford McGregor, secretary of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities, shows that about 40 cities out of the 145 in the state have a regular system of garbage collection. The majority of the cities, particularly the smaller ones have no definite system.

In some of the smaller cities, private individuals, farmers and others, make private arrangements with the house holders and collect garbage for their own use at regular or irregular intervals. The report further states that where regular systems of garbage disposal are installed, one of two methods is followed. Either the city collects the garbage and uses municipal wagons and municipal employees or the city enters into a contract with private parties to do the collecting, using their own equipment. In the following twenty-five cities the garbage is collected by the municipality using its own equipment: Black River, Falls, Burlington, Clintonville, Fennimore, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Horicon, Hurley, Kenosha, Madison, Milwaukee, Monroe, Montclair, Neillsville, Nekoosa, Plymouth, Port Washington, Racine, Ripon, Superior, Sheboygan, Waubesa, West Allis, West Bend, and Wisconsin Rapids.

In Ashland, Beloit, Chippewa Falls, Cudahy, Evansville, Fort Atkinson, Hartford, Janesville, La Crosse, Marinette, North Milwaukee, Oconomowoc, Portage, South Milwaukee, Tomah, Two Rivers and Waubesa, private individuals under contract collect it.

There are three methods used in the disposition of the garbage. It may be fed to the hogs, dumped or buried or it may be burned in incinerators. According to the report ten of the cities are feeding their garbage to the hogs. The majority of them which have regular garbage collections either dump the garbage outside the city limits, bury it or use it together with other refuse and debris to fill in lowlands.

Six cities now dispose of their garbage by incineration. The largest of these is Milwaukee, which has successfully burned its garbage in the municipal incinerator plant of Jones Island for nearly twenty-five years. This is a very large plant and is of the high temperature destructor type. The second city in the state to install a municipal incinerator was Racine. Racine has recently rebuilt and enlarged its incinerator, which is operating very successfully at the present time.

The first small city in the state to install an incinerator was Monroe. This plant is of the so-called Mc Guire type and cost approximately $5,000. This is a one unit plant. A year or so later the city of Sheboygan installed a plant of the same kind as that at Monroe except that it had two units and since that time has installed an additional unit.

Since the Sheboygan plant was installed, municipal incinerators have been constructed in Plymouth and West Allis.

In laying out a system of garbage collection, particular attention should be given to the collection route and the length of the haul. Mr. MacGregor states. In general it costs more to collect the garbage than it does to dispose of it.

ADVANCE REASONS FOR CROSSING ACCIDENTS

Madison, Wis.—Careful examination of the facts surrounding many of the accidents at railroad grade crossings by the grade crossing department of the State Highway Commission under the direction of Harry D. Blake, grade crossing engineer, indicates quite clearly that the physical conditions in the areas adjacent to the tracks are such that the motorist, suddenly discovering his danger of running into or of being run into by a train is hemmed in at the sides of the road and can do nothing but attempt to beat the train to the crossing or try to stop his car in all too short a distance.

Since the inauguration of a grade crossing safety campaign by the Highway Commission several years ago considerable progress has been made in securing the removal of telephone poles, telegraph poles, earth banks, culvert and walls guard fence and similar obstructions at the side of the highways adjacent to railroad tracks. This will make it possible, in many cases, for the driver of a car to deflect his machine either to the right or left and escape collision with the train.

DANCER WINS LONG RIDE
Practically all France paid homage to Miss Galtrey, a seventeen-year-old Hindin dancer who rode a horseback from Paris to Cannes recently, covering the 576 miles of hard modern roads in less than two weeks. So great was the number of motorists who crowded the road into Cannes, that the plan for an escort of polo players had to be abandoned, and it was with difficulty that she drove through the throngs of pedestrians in the city. She was closely followed by Mlle. Grosse, and two other female competitors finished later. The feat was acclaimed remarkable because of the dancer's youth and training.

SCHOOL CONTESTS IN
CALUMET-CO TOWNS

Students Take Part in Academic Tests and Give Declarations Friday Afternoon

Special to Post-Crescent
Forest Junction—Webster school, district 4, town of Woodville, was the scene of the township contest for that area Friday afternoon. Ten pupils, representing five schools took part, with teachers and other pupils from the same schools present as spectators. Miss Mildred Baumgartner, ex-teacher from Arkansas, conducted the tests.

The contests were held simultaneously throughout the nine townships of Calumet county, the participants competing in spelling and arithmetic, and an achievement test in civics, history, and literature, together with a declamatory contest. Each school was entitled to two representatives in the written tests, with one entry in the declamatory contest, where selections from the regular language work were used.

Entries by schools were: Willard, Eleanor Renschel, Mildred Pink; Washington, Albin and Norbert Schwabender; Webster, Ethel Wolf, Le Roy Luckow; Bryan, Ida Horness and Leona Spang; Jackson, Dagna and Gertrude Zick. Leona Spang was the winner of first place in the contest.

The contest for Brillion township was held at Carson school near Brillion village. McKinley, Longfellow, Holmes, and Alcott schools from here were represented in the spelling, arithmetic, and achievement tests, and in the declamatory contest, all except the Holmes school. Clara Wolfmeyer, eighth grade pupil from McKinley school, took first place in spelling, arithmetic, and achievement tests. Longfellow school took third place in the declamatory contest with the selection "Small Boy's Troubles" by Clarence Behl. Clara Wolfmeyer, the youngest participant in the declamatory contest was Wesley Keuer, first grade Alcott school, who recited "The Three Pigs."

Township winners compete for the county championship at the close of the school year in May, when the annual county commencement exercises will be held at the county seat.

ASK HALF MILLION FOR DIVERTING ROADS

Madison—Railroad companies operating in Wisconsin will be asked to furnish nearly a half million dollars as their share of the cost of diverting state trunk highway traffic from 62 railroad grade crossings which are to be eliminated during the coming year.

The proposed work contemplates the inclusion of several complicated and expensive structures at dangerous crossings.

At the close of the construction season of 1927, 117 railroad grade crossings still remained at a menace to the safety of the motorist on the state trunk highway system, states Mr. Blake.

There were also many additional crossings on the so-called connecting streets in cities and villages of 2,500 or more population. The Highway Commission and the county officials are making a determined effort to eliminate this danger as rapidly as possible and during the last year grades were separated or motor traffic diverted at 37 crossings, the railroad companies contributing about $75,000 toward this necessary work.

BUS CLUBS HIT GOVERNMENT
Motor clubs are giving officials of Australia, which own the railways of the country, a new problem. The clubs are composed of suburbanites of Melbourne who join together, pay an entrance fee and subscription, and the club buys a motor omnibus. Each club's membership is limited, and only members may use the buses that ply between each suburb and the city. The buses therefore do not "belong" to the "carry their owners," and thus avoid the bus tax. They have caught the suburbanites' fancy to such an extent that the Minister of Railways is complaining of the growing competition, which he says is no more than an evasion of the law.

Civil Service Bulletin Reports That but One Year of Physics Is Required

Appleton boys who have had one year of physics in high school or one semester of the same subject in college, are offered an opportunity by the United States Civil Service Commission, to learn to be weather prophets.

Until June 9 the commission will receive applications for positions of junior observers in meteorology in branches of the weather bureau throughout the country. The course in physics is one of the requirements. The entrance salary is $1,320 per year with chances for higher salaries through promotion.

The commission expects to make a large number of appointments to the weather bureau from this examination in connection with furnishing weather reports and warning to promote the safety and efficiency of air navigation in the United States. Recent legislation provides for a division of civil aviation under the secretary of commerce.

Full information on the examinations may be obtained from the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from H. J. Franck, secretary of the civil service board of examiners at the Appleton Post Office.

STAGE AND SCREEN

ROMANCE AND REALISM IN "DRUMS OF LOVE"

Romantic realism and realistic romance.

D. W. Griffith seems to have achieved such a thing in "Drums of Love," the feature attraction with Mary Philbin, Lionel Barrymore, Don Alvarado and Tully Marshall opening at the Elite Theatre 4 days starting Monday.

Though the story is essentially a romance of a great and tragic love, Griffith, by his splendid insight into the emotions, is said to have made it a realistic drama with none of the softness or dreaminess generally associated with realism.

Instead, "Drums of Love" is one of the most colorful and entertaining pageant-like ever made by Griffith. It has all the beauty of "Broken Blossoms," all its poignancy and moods with the addition of dash and verve.

In making the picture Griffith desired most of all to emphasize the great love theme of France, de Rimini upon which the photoplay is based and also to interject into the screen version enough color to make its appeal universal—in other words, he wanted romantic realism.

Griffith has patterned his present photoplay on the successful formula which made "The Birth of a Nation" the great picture it was. "Drums of Love" has the same ingredients of spectacular splashes of action, with the addition of emotional passages that are fated to be named among the finest examples of acting on the screen.

The dramatic work of Mary Philbin, Lionel Barrymore, Don Alvarado and Tully Marshall is said to be outstanding as is the comedy performance of William Austin. Griffith made "Drums of Love" for United Artists.

The critical eye of the American picture audience is forcing absolute accuracy of detail in the filming of productions today, according to William Wellman, Paramount director. And, for that reason, the man who directed "Wings" which is now hailed as the greatest motion picture roadshow ever filmed, surrounded himself with the best of technical advisors as he started work on the companion picture to "Wings," "The Legion of the Condemned," now showing at Fischers Appleton theatre.

In spite of the fact that the young director lived the life of a flier at the front during the war as a member of the Lafayette Squadron, he insisted upon four other aviation experts being assigned to his unit because, as he believes, "everything must be correct if the production is to meet favor with American audiences."

Wellman called upon Captain Sterling C. Campbell, one of the foremost British aces during the war, for his assistance. In addition to helping with the technical details, Campbell will play a part in the story which deals with a flying squadron of death.

Ted Parsons, a Detroit boy, who won honors at the French front as a pilot before the United States entered the war, likewise will assist in carrying out the details. Parsons, with Campbell, will also play a part in the photoplay. Both were members of the staff and cast in "Wings."

The story of "The Legion of the Condemned" was written by John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings," himself an instructor in aeronautics for the Air Corps of the United States. Jean de Linhr, credited with the script with Saunders, served with the French forces at the front for five years.

Coming 2 days only Thursday and Friday, April 26 and 27 to Fischers Appleton Theatre. A colorful romance of the old South and filled with music comedy, funny comedians, catchy music, beautiful girls.

Grim Reaper Trails Far Behind With Only 42 Victims During Past Month

The physician had 20 poor department patients call at his office and he visited eight. There were four street deaths, fifteen at St. Elizabeth hospital, one at the police station, one at the health department office, two at the schools, and three from the hospital and water department.

He also checked one case of diphtheria, four of scarlet fever, eighteen of chicken pox and one of measles during the month.

The report of the deputy health officer, Theodore Sanders, shows that he quarantined one home for diphtheria, four for scarlet fever, placarded eighteen for chicken pox, one for measles, released nineteen homes, inspected three bakeries, twelve dairies, two meat markets, three groceries, five homes and answered fifteen complaints. Science Working Hard To Prevent Mental Diseases

Madison—(AP)— Before many years are past people may call a doctor instead of a sheriff and may voluntarily submit themselves for medical examination as they do now for physical examination.

This is the opinion expressed by Dr. W. F. Lorenz, director of the Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute of the University of Wisconsin. His words are carried in the bulletin of the state conference of Social work, one of the organizations closely allied with his institution.

Work of crime prevention in Wisconsin that is being carried on by the institute is explained by Dr. Lorenz. The Psychiatric Institute is chiefly concerned with the prevention of mental disease. New treatments for various types of insanity are constantly being studied. The causes of mental diseases are being studied and the institute is aiding in the work of wiping out the disease at its source. Of the changed public attitude toward mental diseases, Dr. Lorenz said:

"The superstitious and almost medieval horror with which people have long regarded mental ailments fades slowly but surely out of the public consciousness. The time is not far off when, instead of a sheriff, a physician will be called; instead of regarding mental sickness as an offense or crime, it will be looked upon as an illness that may befall anyone. And then commitment to a curative institution will be a voluntary and not a legal procedure that is comparable to the conviction of a felon."

Working with the Psychiatric Institute is the Psychiatric Field Service, under the state board of control. All criminals and delinquents who are admitted to state institutions are examined mentally and physically, and those shown to be feeble minded are removed from the penal institutions and placed in feeble minded homes, when it is possible to do so.

Studying potential criminals among the psychopathic patients in state institutions and in the public schools is another work that is being done by the Psychiatric Institute. Psychopathic tendencies are often developed by children, and they must be treated at once if more serious mental disorders are to be checked.

The program of the Psychiatric Institute includes the enlargement of the state institutions already in operation, encouragement of voluntary commitment for cases of mental illness, the development of child guidance bureaus in cities, more trained teachers and better facilities for training exceptional children, and a campaign of public education in mental hygiene.

428 MONEY ORDERS SOLD DURING MARCH

A total of 428 money orders were sold by rural mail carriers of the Appleton Post Office during the first three months of this year, records show. Of this number, 308 were issued in January; 111 in February; and 428 in March. Most rural postal patrons prefer to buy money orders from the mail carriers than to come to the post office for them. There were 35 carriers, eight in January, 14 in February and 17 in March. Sixty-one parcels were insured by the rural mailmen during the first quarter. Of this number 26 were insured in January, 19 in February and 16 in March.

Ziemann, Navy recruiting officer at the Post office building, Oshkosh. All the Post office building, Oshkosh, men who expect to be admitted should be ready to leave for Milwaukee on the morning of April 27, according to Mr. Ziemann.

TWO SUNDAY FIRES CAUSE LITTLE DAMAGE

The fire department was called out twice Sunday although no serious damage resulted at either fire. The first call was to a flat at 715 W. Prospect-ave, about 2:55 Sunday morning, where the roof caught fire from sparks from the chimney. The house is occupied by the Joseph Wagner and Carl Woenmiller families. The blaze was put out with chemicals after a small amount of damage had been done.

A smoking oil stove, which filled the upper story of the building at 605 W. College-ave, caused the fire Sunday afternoon. No damage resulted. The lower part of the building is occupied by a soft drink parlor operated by George Kirschlore. The upper part of the building is a dwelling occupied by Louis Cordes.

Spencer-st., arrested for traveling 31 miles an hour on W. College-ave about 10:15 Sunday morning. Both arrests were made by Gus Herserkorn, motorcycle officer.

TOLEDO, COLUMBUS WIN ONLY BATTLES IN A. A.

Chicago — (P) — Jupiter Pluvius is wrecking havoc with gate receipts and the schedule in the American Association race.

So general was the rain over the weekend that only two games out of the eight scheduled were played. One of these, Minneapolis at Columbus, was played Sunday in a drizzling rain and had to be called at the beginning of the ninth inning. Attendance marks have been at low ebb, because of the rain and cold weather.

The two weekend games were played Sunday. Columbus won a heavy hitting contest over Minneapolis, 8 to 1. Harris of Minneapolis was the batting star of the game, with a double, homer and two singles in five trips to the plate.

The Cuban southpaw, Emilio Palmiero was too good for St. Paul batsmen, holding them to five scattered hits, and Toledo won, 3 to 2. Two Toledo rookies, Jack Smith and Joe Messner, led the Hons attack with two hits each.

Appleton High Entered In Midwest Relay Meet

Madison—Thirty teams from a half dozen middle western states have already officially entered the fifth annual Midwest Relays of the University of Wisconsin, to be held next Saturday at Camp Randall stadium.

Tom Lieb, meet manager, received entry blanks from five Chicago schools yesterday, bringing the total of Illinois schools competing to ten. Thirteen prep school teams from the Badger state have entered.

Two Iowa schools, one from Indiana and one from North Dakota complete the entry list, with the meet still one week in the offing. Lieb expects last year's record of 400 competitors to be equalled, if not bettered by the time all blanks have been received.

The three local institutions and the five Milwaukee teams already enrolled will to a great measure uphold the honor of the home state. The Milwaukee runners are always tough and should make the going interesting for the out-of-state athletes.

GEORGE CHRISTOPH George "Nig" Christoph, assistant director of athletics at Lawrence college, signed a contract Saturday to become physical director and head coach of basketball and track at Emporia, Kansas. Christoph will take up his new work at Emporia next September. The college has 500 students and is a leader in athletics in a Kansas collegiate conference.

TWO UNBEATEN TEAMS MEET IN BIG TEN BALL

Chicago, —(P)—The Big Ten baseball title case will shift into full speed this week with every conference mine billed to play one game or more.

The outstanding contest of the week is scheduled Tuesday between two undefeated teams, Indiana and Michigan, at Bloomington. The Wolverines are leading the conference with three victories and no defeats while the Hoosiers are second with two victories in as many attempts.

Chicago will inaugurate its conference season Tuesday when it clashes with Northwestern at Evanston. The Wildcats have been beaten in both their 1928 games.

Min., the only other Big Ten team which has not played a conference game, will open its race at Illinois Saturday. The Illini have won their only game but have two to make up because of postponements.

Wisconsin started its conference campaign with an 8 to 3 win over Northwestern at Madison Saturday. The Badgers will play at Iowa Saturday.

Other games on this week's card: Illinois at Purdue, Wednesday, and Northwestern at Indiana, Saturday. Michigan is leading the conference in team batting with an average of .336. Illinois is leading in team fielding, having handled 39 chances without an error.

GENE DOESN'T LIKE FLAG AROUND WAIST

New York—(P)—The heavyweight champion of the world has conscientious scruples against wearing the national colors around his waist. Representatives of the Tough club, a social organization, presented a belt of red, white and blue to Gene Tunney when he arrived here from Miami Beach, Fla., but the champion turned it back with the request that some other color scheme be used.

"You can deck the beer of a general with the colors of the American flag but they should not be used to drape around the portly stomach of a fighter," the champion commented in returning the gift.

FINALS IN VALLEY RING MEET FRIDAY

One Appleton Man, Wolfe, Fights for District Amateur Title

What amateur mit fans of the Fox River Valley have been waiting for, for some weeks, the announcement of the date of the finals of the Valley amateur boxing championships, was made Saturday at Green Bay where the bouts will be held. Two eliminations cards were held in February and March and the winners will meet for the Valley titles in their respective classes on Friday evening, April 27. One Appleton boy, Weller Wolfe, who knocked his man out in the second round of the first elimination series is entered in the finals.

Amateurs "running out" of an amateur bout when the going looked too tough for any young man's comfort is perhaps as old as the game itself, but matchmakers running is altogether new to the business. However there seems to be an excess of "buck passing" in the business of perfecting the matches for the finals of the tournament which will be contested in Columbus auditorium.

MENASHA BOY FIGHTS Erich Lipsch, lanky blonde southpaw, will meet Bobby Ford, Menasha's own Johnny Risko — the baker boy, because each of these lightweight winners won on the elimination contests run in February and March. Ly Noel of Green Bay and George Ecker, of the Lindsay-Dory school at Marinette will settle the argument in the featherweight division.

That however ends the definite matches up to this moment. Lyman Thomas came into this tournament to annex the flyweight "championship" of the valley. The only youngster who disputed his right to this claim was on his feet just 50 seconds, and there are no more contenders. Charley Negro, the Angelica windmill sent Lawrence college champion home broken hearted and there remains in the middleweight division only "Mamie" Murphy and the former East High football man has waited since the first bouts in February for a chance, but has never been called into action.

But worst of all, the other six winners are all in the same weight division and some aspiring matchmaker who can place those 6 lads into 3 matches which will give every one of the six boys an equal chance for a win and at the same time please each of the six junior welters is welcome to that job, according to the tournament officials.

Weller Wolfe, Appleton's sheik boxer is ready for the finals at 140 pounds. In Oshkosh waits one Tommy Ryan, 6 feet tall and 141 pounds heavy. Kenneth Nuss who was made to go all 3 rounds with Roy Bean of Kaukauna on the February card went into that affair weighing between 138 and 139. George Zwick, Kaukauna, who record makes some mention of having eliminated a promising Bay youngster, Keweenaw, 145 and was not enthusiastic about giving away 5 pounds to the boy he met, Ira Miller. "The Menasha Mauler" was at 145 and a fraction when he took his win on the March card.

SOME PUZZLE Whether "Handmark" meets Wolfe, Ryan, Zwick, Miller, or Nuss and which ones of these lads meet each other is the unsolved riddle of matchmaking for no definite matches have been billed or announced as yet and the card is but nine days away.

Whichever the last six boys are paired the fans certain to see some action and some good boxing for the junior welters furnished the finest exhibitions of boxing presented thus far in the tournament.

TUNNEY BACK IN OLD NEW YORK FOR WORKOUT

New York—(P)—Gene Tunney is back in New York, ready to start training for his heavyweight title defense against the plodding Anzac, Tom Heeney, in July, and quite reconciled to Tex Rickard's program of one championship "shot" a year.

After a week here, Tunney plans to start on a program of light training at Speculator, N. Y.

Tunney arrived from Miami Beach, Fla., Sunday in time to characterize as "ridiculous," reports that he planned to tour Europe on a "honeymoon" after he battles Heeney.

Backing Tex Rickard's selection of his opponent, Tunney said he believed Heeney was the best of the challengers.

"I have never seen Heeney with his hands inside the ropes but from what I hear he must be a pretty good man. He wins his fights and that's what counts."

Sunburned to a deep tan, the champion appeared in fine condition as he stepped off the train, although he admitted he weighed 202 pounds, more than he ever has scaled.

VETERAN GOLF TEAM IN WALKER TROPHY PLAY

New York—(P)—The Walker cup, never out of the hands of American golfers since it was donated for international competition in 1921, will be ably defended at Chicago August 30-31.

The team announced by the United States Golf Association to play in the final match between the United States and Great Britain is composed of veteran internationalists. The majority of the players are old only in golf, however, and all may be expected to do weather the Stern August test.

Every one of the big eight has played on previous Walker cup teams and two have played on all of them. Francis quint and Jess Sweetser were members of the teams of 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1926. Bobby Jones played in 1922, 1924 and 1926 and Chick Evans in 1922 and 1924. Jimmy Johnston was a member of the 1923 and 1921 teams and an alternate in 1926. Roland Mackenzie played on Elm and Watts Gunn George for the first time on the 1926 team.

The Walker cup was donated in 1921 by George H. Walker, St. Louis and was played in competition in 1922.

HARVARD SEEKS TITLE

With nine varsity letter men back on the squad, Harvard is shooting for the eastern intercollegiate baseball championship. The squad working under Coach Fred Mitchell, former manager of the Chicago Cubs, and Captain Howe Burns, star center fielder, includes some of the best baseball talent in the east. In the picture above are Burns and Mitchell and in the circle is W. P. Spinnay, survivor of the Harvard collegiate champion team of 1874, who was one of the spectators at the opening game.

YANKEES SHOW FLAG FORM IN EARLY DAY

Hugginsmen Considered Contenders, Browns Only Flash in Pan

Even an infant in the ways of baseball should not have to be cautioned that club standings in late April are flimsy indications but some significance can be attached to the early season games.

The sprint of the St. Louis Browns at the start of the American League pennant race could be dismissed because it was simply an ancient but the fast start of the New York Yankees meant something. The Yankees won because they had the right to win.

The nice form shown by the Cleveland Indians was also worthy of consideration because the Indians were hustling, something they didn't do last year. The Indians, of course, aren't being touted for the pennant but there shouldn't be any doubts that the club will do better than it did last year.

Under ordinary circumstances the horrible start of the Philadelphia Athletics might be glossed over, but in their particular situation it may be vitally important. Of course, Connie Mack has the consolation that Al Simmons and Haas will not be out of the game indefinitely and that speaker and Cobb may start to do something for their fancy salaries, but every day is important.

The Yankees, getting off with a flying start, certainly cannot be looked upon as a club flashing something over its head. The other American League clubs learned last year what kind of a job it is to cut down a lead of the champions and they're stepping out just like they did last year.

No one can figure out those Yankees. Miller Huggins had them tagged as accurately as possible when he said "They are a team of extremes." They did one extreme in the south when they were tossed all over the place, but when the money games started they switched into the reverse extreme.

KAUKAUNA YOUTH STAR OF M. U. TRACK EVENT

When Milwaukee Normal trackmen whipped the Marquette University freshmen, 74-43 Saturday, Emmet Rohan, Kaukauna boy and a star cross country man while a freshman at Lawrence last year, featured the work of the Hilltop yearlings with two firsts.

Rohan won both the half and three-quarter mile runs to tie for high point man of the meet with Moody, another M. U. frosh, who also took two firsts.

WILL ENTER VANDERBILT
Gresham McCullough, one of the most talented athletes Culver has had in recent years, plans to attend Vanderbilt University. He is a star in football, basketball and track at Culver this year.

The brothers ran one-two in the 100 and 200 yard dashes, Doug beating his brother by two steps in the hundred and Don nosing him out by a nose in the 220. Doug's time for the hundred was 101 seconds while the 220 time was 23.5. Don took the 440 from a large field by beating out Fischl and Vedder, both freshmen, in the slow time of 56.5 seconds. Doug then came back and took the 120-yard low hurdles race in 13.2 seconds.

JOHNSTON IS THIRD
Ray Brussat, former Washington High flash, was beaten out in the fight for third place in the century dash by "Sword" Johnston, Appleton high school star, who ran a close third to the Hyde's 101 time.

In the mile run Menning pulled the surprise of the meet by beating Wolf, star miler, who was unable to keep up with Menning's pace. Menning also won the half-mile event in 3 minutes 11 seconds.

Calhoun was the outstanding star of the freshmen team, winning the high jump, the pole vault, the 120-yard high hurdles, and running second to Doug Hyde in the 120 lows. Calhoun's time for the 120 yard highs was 17.1 seconds.

The track events were practically a clean sweep for the varsity, but the Viking regulars were unable to compete against youth in the field events, and all the best marks were made by either members of the freshman squad or the prep squad. Johnston taking his two specialties the broad jump and shot put, in easy fashion.

EXPECT SMITH WILL MAKE HOT REPLY TO CRITICS OF FAITH

Candidate for President Has Wonderful Powers of Oratory and Uses Them

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the eleventh in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for the Post-Crescent by Robert Talley, is the last of four articles on Gov. Al Smith of New York. Tomorrow begins a series on Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
Albany—When Al Smith answers those who have attacked his eligibility for the presidency on the ground that he is a Catholic, the nation can expect one of the greatest speeches in the long career of this man who has won fame as a powerful orator.

Gov. Smith is a devout member of his church, as were his parents, and he has no apologies to make for his religion. He holds that one's manner of worshipping God is a personal matter, entirely dissociated from government. He has always attended church regularly.

"I have never known any conflict between my official duties and my religious belief," Gov. Smith once said. "I recognize no power in my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the land."

Religion burns deeply within the breast of New York's governor, once an altar boy at St. James', near his home on the East Side. In his youth the church nurtured him, giving him the only schooling he ever received. He started him on his career as a public speaker with the annual theatricals given in the church basement. He buried his father and his mother, who died secure in the consolation of their faith, and it has comforted him in many of his own dark hours.

There were a conflict between religious loyalty to the Catholic church and patriotic loyalty to the United States," Gov. Smith once said. "I, of all men, could not have escaped it because I have not been a silent man, but a battler for social and political reform. The 'battler' would in their very nature disclose the conflict if any."

When Gov. Smith makes reply to these attacks, the public may hear something of the innumerable letters from friends of religious tolerance. Protestants and Catholics alike—that have flooded into his office here ever since the issue was raised. That day he will speak with a profound emotion, born of something that is closest within his heart.

He may read the letter received from a Gold State farmer, urging him to fight to the last ditch as a matter of sacred duty to the nation "to prevent America from becoming a prey of bigots who would raise a warning sign that no Catholic mother giving birth to a son could expect him to share the nation's highest honor."

One thing is certain, say those who know Gov. Smith best—he will never retreat under this attack nor surrender because of assaults made on his religion.

"Believe," Smith has said, "in the common brotherhood of man under the common Fatherhood of God. . . I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church."

Though his name was mentioned at San Francisco in 1920 and roundly cheered, Gov. Smith has been prominent as a presidential possibility at Madison Square Garden in 1924.

The memory of that bitter and tumultuous session is too clear to need much description here. It ran through four weeks, through 103 ballots as forces under the leadership of Mr. Adoo and Smith grappled in a historic deadlock which was finally broken by the nomination of John W. Davis. One of the bitterest political fights in history was staged over the effort to have the party platform condemn the Ku Klux Klan by name, which failed.

The northern wing of the Democratic party, strongly pro-Catholic, and the pro-Klan southern Democrats locked in a struggle that brought political disaster at the polls in November.

Gov. Smith has never denied that in the old days in New York's East Side he enjoyed perching his foot on a brass rail and blowing the foam off a cold glass, but he has not advertised this fact since prohibition became a national issue.

The Anti-Saloon League labels him as a "wet," but another description might be that he is "an advocate of state's rights." He does not advocate repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but he does favor modification of the Volstead act to allow states to fix their own alcoholic limits. He says he does not favor the state political issue that did not affect the state directly, and asserted that he was devoting his whole attention to state affairs.

"As a state," Gov. Smith once said, jokingly, "we haven't any foreign relations—except those who come to visit us."

But times change. Recently, it is rumored, Gov. Smith has had experts compiling data and information for him on a number of national and international subjects. After he has studied, sifted and analyzed these he may announce his views on a number of matters.

Such is the latest chapter in the making of "the new Al Smith," the former East Side newsboy, fish market clerk, ward boss and Tammany politician who has lifted himself by his own boot straps to a position where he is now a formidable candidate for the presidency.

Apprenticeship has been kind to Al Smith throughout life, but the secret

Ripon—With the unexpected withdrawal from Ripon college of Joe Meyer, dash wizard, until next fall, tracksters here Saturday elected Arthur Rude, Rice Lake, a junior, captain for the season. No reason for Meyer's action was made public by Coach Carl Doehling, although it is understood that no disciplinary measures were involved. He holds the Midwest conference record in the century and 220 yard dashes.

Capt. Rude has placed in the quarter mile since he was a freshman and will run the 220, century and relay on the crimson schedule this spring.

With Meyer out Lawrence stands a better chance in the state quadrangular meet as the Hyde twins are having their best year in the dashes.

WISCONSIN MEN STARS IN KANSAS RELAY MEET

Lawrence Kas.—(AP)—Athletes from Wisconsin made outstanding showings in the sixth annual Kansas relays held on stadium field.

Pfeiffer, Marquette university entrant in the special 3,000 meter run, finished fourth among a field of some fifteen contestants.

Pahlmeyer hurdler from the University of Wisconsin was the favorite to win the high hurdles in the finals after he had shown considerable class in winning a preliminary heat at 15.5 seconds and after leading the first section in the semi-finals in 15.5. However, he got away to a bad start in the final race and was forced to allow three others to beat him to the tape.

STURGEON BAY BOWLER GETS PERFECT SCORE

Green Bay—(AP)—Sturgeon Bay robbed on the bowling ball in big letter here Sunday when Joe Pauls, captain of the Pauls Recreation team from the cherry country rolled a perfect game while grasping the pins in the five-man event.

Pauls' team collected 7.50 and the perfect score collector collected a big bonus of it, getting 741 which is the high single total of the Fox River Valley tournament on the North Side community alleys. Pauls scores were 138, 300 and 243.

Team leaders in the valley tournament were unchanged.

TRAINS USE LESS COAL TO OPERATE NOW, REPORT

Statistics compiled by agents of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, show the extent to which the railroad has economized within a period of seven years.

In 1920 the railroad used 127 pounds of coal to haul 1,000 gross tons of freight one mile, and in 1927 they used only 155 pounds of coal for the same service, saving 42 pounds for every 1,000 gross tons hauled in one mile.

In the same period the railroad reduced the amount of coal in their passenger service from 13.8 pounds to 15.3 pounds to haul a passenger train car one mile, and in 1927 they saved three pounds of coal over their 1920 record in hauling each passenger train car one mile.

More than a million tons of coal, enough to last the entire country three weeks, was saved during the period of six years.

FRANK WILL MAKE MEMORIE ADDRESS

Memoriam—(AP)—President Glen Frank of the University of Wisconsin has accepted the invitation of President B. E. Nelson of Stout Institute to give the commencement address at Memoriam on May 25.

More than five decades of bachelor of science will be granted this year at any commencement, this teachers' college having emphasized the four-year course only a few years.

Dr. A. E. Leonard of the First Congregational church, Eau Claire, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon May 20.

of his success is that his ability has kept pace with his opportunities.

I asked Gov. Smith if he thought an ambitious boy of today has as much chance to rise to fame by his own efforts as the boy of his day.

"Not an equal chance to succeed in life, but a very much better chance," Gov. Smith said. "The boy of today has far more advantages than any boy of 50 years ago. He sees men flying in the air, he enjoys the advantages of the radio and his opportunities for education are immeasurably greater."

And there seemed to be something really wistful in the tone in which he uttered that word "education."

TOMORROW: Vice President Dawes.

RED CROSS GAVE AID TO 600,000 VICTIMS OF FLOOD LAST YEAR

Relief Fund of 17 Million Dollars Helped to Restore Many Families

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—A year after the Mississippi flood reached the proportions of a great disaster, the Red Cross has rehabilitated the hundreds of thousands of flood victims as effectively as it could with the $17,000,000 relief fund at its disposal.

As late as March some 54,000 victims were still being fed by the Red Cross, according to the organization's figures. Today only a very few families, their needs carefully investigated by local chapters, are still receiving free food and other help.

The $17,000,000 has all been spent except for a small amount needed for continuation work in a few of the hardest hit counties of Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

That great relief fund, according to the Red Cross, was used to care for more than 600,000 persons in one way or another. This reconstruction aid was administered in the form of rebuilding and repairing homes, procuring household goods, clothing, livestock and poultry, feed, seed, farm implements and providing food and medical care.

It is still too early to tell how many persons will be receiving continuation aid after the end of this year of work and expenditure, but the number may go into the thousands.

Although national interest in flood sufferers subsided after a month or two, the number of cases cared for was higher last February than it had been since July. The Red Cross provides the following table showing the number of refugees given food, shelter, medical attention or other service from month to month:

May (1927)	382,000
June	300,000
July	253,000
August	65,000
September	62,000
October	18,000
November	20,000
December	33,000
January	71,000
February	54,000
March	54,000
April 1: Rationing scheduled to be	54,000

Food supplies of an unfortunate families gave out early in the winter season and it was necessary for increased numbers of families to be aided over until the spring planting. Last summer, at the peak of the problem, the Red Cross claims to have saved more than 1,000,000 meals a day.

Its expenditures included $5,000,000 for food, $2,500,000 for seed, $1,750,000 for building and repairs, $750,000 for household furnishings and $300,000 for livestock and poultry. More than 1,000,000 acres of land are said to have been planted with Red Cross seed.

The flood-stricken area covered about 20,000 square miles.

Its largest expenditures by states were $5,500,000 in Louisiana, $5,350,000 in Mississippi and $4,000,000 in Arkansas. The other $2,000,000 was divided between Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois and Oklahoma.

Among the achievements of reconstruction workers was the removal of the town of Columbus, Ky., half a mile from its river bank site to a bluff above the water level. Foundations and the excavation of flooded Melville, La., out of from six to ten feet of mud.

It was the biggest relief job in American history.

HIRE LOCAL MEN FIRST, CITY COUNCIL ASKS

Vogt Protests Against Contractors Leaving Streets Torn Up

If there is to be any construction by the city of Appleton during the coming summer, Appleton workmen are to be hired for the job whenever possible according to an opinion expressed in answer to the complaint of Philip Vogt, alderman from the Sixth ward, that construction companies with work in numerous cities were bringing in men and paying them a low wage.

No intimation was directly made that such a condition had occurred in Appleton, but the sentiment of the council seemed to be to forestall any such move. The council cannot force the contractors to pay a certain minimum wage but it can say something about the hiring of employees for it has an alternative of doing the work itself if the contractors cannot agree on the employment problem.

Alderman Vogt also suggested that when streets are graded this year, the contractors be made to pave immediately rather than hold up entire blocks while they continue operations elsewhere leaving the graded streets in such conditions that residents cannot get into their own drive ways.

LEVITAN MUST DO AS OFFICERS DIRECT

Madison—(AP)—Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, has turned over to the teachers retirement fund authorities the securities involved in the reorganization of a Milwaukee and an Eau Claire farm loan corporation.

The securities were the subject of a supreme court case when the state treasurer questioned his propriety or wisdom of releasing them from his vaults to be subject to the fortunes of the reorganizing companies. The supreme court held that he was only entrusted with them as treasurer and that whatever the security fund officers decided to do with them was not his responsibility. The high court also held that he would not be liable to the state for their loss after the retirement fund board had ordered him to make some disposition of them. The securities were for approximately $700,000 of the retirement funds.

Government Employees Not Allowed To Cast Ballots

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—One class of about 500,000 American citizens is not permitted to participate actively in politics during this big political year or any other.

Government employees who hold their jobs through competitive civil service examinations are permitted to vote and express their private opinions but may not engage in any political activity in city, county, state or national elections—or primaries.

Just recently, employees of the San Francisco postoffice felt the effect of this regulation. Quite a number of them had worked for James E. Power, a former San Francisco postmaster who was running for mayor. It was said that they had been given to understand that Power, if defeated, would return to his old job and that it would thus be as well for them to help him. A similar situation, incidentally, developed in Chicago several years ago when Arthur C. Luederer resigned as postmaster to run for mayor against Dever.

Two assistant superintendents of mail in the San Francisco office have been removed, three clerks reduced in salary paid and 14 others "warned and admonished."

Senator Deneen's big victory over the Thompson-Crawford-Smith group in Illinois has added immensely to his prestige here, where it had hardly been expected. It strengthened Lowden as a presidential candidate, for he participated in the fruits of victory, but it doesn't seem to have increased the belief that Deneen would be the ultimate Republican candidate if Hoover should be stopped on the early ballot.

There is evidence that Lowden will be stronger than many expect and that Deneen is not adding to the secret strength with which he has been credited. Many months ago this writer was told by Illinois politicians that Deneen had presidential ambitions. It may be now that in the event of a convention deadlock Lowden delegates will go to Deneen rather than to Daves.

Now that Deneen appears to rule supreme in Illinois it might be poor judgment for a delegate to do otherwise—and the elected delegates have more in common with Deneen, who moved the pineapples, than with Daves, who stayed on the job in Washington. The comforting fact for Daves would be that Deneen couldn't be nominated and that he might nevertheless, barring accidents, get the whole Illinois delegation in the end.

One of the strongest tendencies in the councils of our Army and Navy is to do things the way the British do them. But it was only human for Secretary of War Dwight P. Davis, during his European visit last year, to observe that troops were ever to be seen parading around Buckingham Palace and other famous places and to wish that we might have something of the sort right here.

The result was that for awhile last summer every Friday saw a small detachment of troops doing their stuff on the alleys between the White House grounds and the Washington monument. Large and enthusiastic crowds were attracted, and when the parading troops began regularly to outnumber the spectators the drills were called off.

Now they have been started again, at the height of the tourist season, with more lightheavy, more color, more spectators and more troops.

Secretary of State Kellogg was drafted as chief reviewing functionary after President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes had pleaded other engagements. For the grand opening, Secretary Davis called for all the available troops in Fort Myer, Fort Humphrey and Washington barracks, more than 1500 of them. The army band accompanied. If the crowd keeps up, there will be marching troops to be seen every Friday all summer long.

COMMISSION WANTS SHRUBBERY SAVED

Tighten Up on Stipulations Where Utility Wires Effect Trees

Madison—A tightening up by State Highway Commission on the stipulation that in the construction of transmission lines or any other kind of public utility lines on Wisconsin highway utility companies must see to it that there is no undue or unnecessary cutting of trees or shrubbery along the roadway, is expected to do much in the future for the preservation of the natural roadway beauty of Wisconsin's system of highways, according to C. R. Weymouth deputy state highway engineer.

The Highway Commission in a meeting of November 1927 ordered stated that where the preliminary layout utility line along a highway has been made by the utility company, the division engineer of the division in which the placing of such a line is contemplated must be notified in order that he may go over the layout to determine whether or not that layout is the proper one to protect trees along the road and conserve the interests of the highway in general, Weymouth states.

In entering into a highway building contract the contractor agrees to abide by the provisions of a paragraph in the contract under which he can be heavily fined for the undue or unnecessary cutting down of valuable trees. There are times when the widening out or straightening of a highway necessitates the seemingly indiscriminate cutting down of trees but this is not done except where such cutting is amply compensated for with a necessary greater safety for the motorist. The Commission is exercising a great deal of care and thought to this phase of highway improvement.

Weymouth believes, however, that the only consistent way of fighting the tree slashing evil will come through the adoption of a policy of securing wider rights of way in the construction and reconstruction of highways in the future. He points out that Michigan has had success in this field by the adoption of a 100-foot right of way.

"In the long run," Mr. Weymouth declares, "the adoption of a similar policy in Wisconsin would result in the complete protection of the roadside tree which adds so much to the beauty of our Wisconsin landscape and so much to the pleasure of driving over Wisconsin's highways."

Unusual Birds

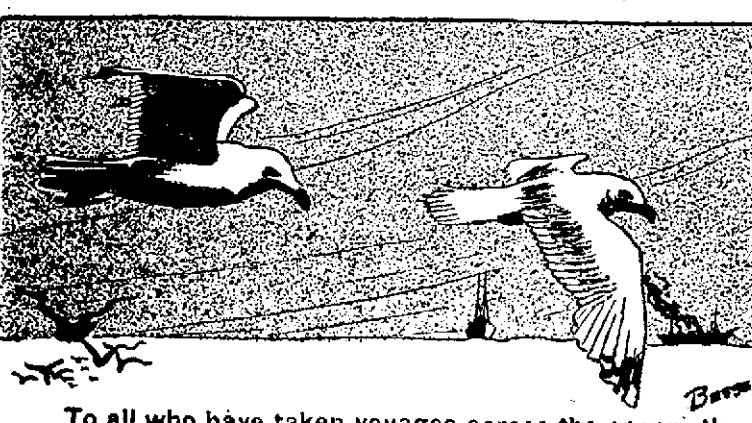

Thousands of men spend their lives studying birds. They are called ornithologists, and it is to their serious efforts that we owe our knowledge of our friends of the air. Some birds are uncouth to look upon, but most feathered creatures are beautiful. Above is pictured a Sun Bittern, with magnificent wing and tail feathers.

Ostriches are raised for their wonderful plumes. The Ostrich trying to hide, pokes his head into the sand and imagines he is concealed.

The pride of the Peacock has become a family proverb. Here is sketched a fine specimen of the species.

To all who have taken voyages across the ocean, the sight of Gulls is familiar. Many types of airplanes are patterned after the Sea Gull and other wide-winged birds. The Gulls pictured above, in full flight, are following some ship, on the lookout for whatever in the way of edibles is thrown overboard.

TOWNSLAKE GULLS MAKE ANNUAL APPEARANCE

Scores of Birds Flock to Vicinity of New London Where Fishing Is Good

Special to Post-Crescent.
New London—The annual appearance of scores of lake gulls has been noted along the flood waters of the Wolf river and its tributaries during the past week. These white winged scavengers are seen but a short time hereabout and that only during the time that fishing is good in the low lands where frogs are emerging from their winter's sleep and pike and pickerel are easily caught in the shallow waters of the marshes. Sunday they were seen wheeling here and there above the river or fishing in small groups in the lowlands.

Due to the recent snows and rains, the Wolf river is still high. Water is still running from the river into the marshes, but this condition does not imply that the water is high. It is said to be unusually high for this time of the year, due to excessive snow and the length of time necessary for the frost to leave the ground.

Roads are improving, and it is reported that road patrols will begin working on rough spots during the coming week. Streets in the city are still rough and will be dragged and leveled also during the coming week. It is expected that a number of streets will be graveled during the early part of the summer.

PILOTLESS PLANE LOOPS LOOP

Controlled by wireless, pilotless planes have recently been made to loop the loop successfully, according to reports from England. Intensive research is being made there in radio piloting, and other amazing maneuvers are made as easily possible with a new delicate governing system within the plane, operated entirely by radio waves. A radio receiving set within the plane is designed to interpret and act upon impulses transmitted from a ground control compressed air motors, which are actuated by the master radio set and work the controls without a hitch. Other ideas are also being developed.

BRIDES DINE "OLD FLAMES"

London's latest wedding-party idea is for the prospective bride to entertain her friends at dinner, and the bride-groom to act as host to his women friends. The idea took well until it was realized that later there would be some questioning by both bride and groom as to the guests of the moment. Another fashionable fad of the moment is the "bag party," at which the bride-to-be entertains her women friends on the eve of the wedding as does the bride-groom at his "bachelor dinner." This gesture of the assertion of the rights of the modern woman is much more popular than the "old flame" idea, and especially so among the brides.

A Brighton (England) book-seller named Brewer invented the envelope in 1830; while Edwin Hill, brother of Sir Rowland Hill, invented the first envelope-making machine.

SCIENTISTS EXPLAIN
CHRISTMAS MEETING

Will Gather on Holiday Because Members Are Busy at All Other Times

Baltimore—(AP)—Only a scientist could be expected to explain why a national organization should meet at Christmas time.

The National Association for the Advancement of Science will begin its annual meeting at Nashville, Tenn., today after Christmas. That is its usual date and is chosen annually with scientific precision.

Dr. Burton E. Livingston, director of plant physiology at Johns Hopkins University and permanent secretary of the association, cites its history to show why the holidays are selected for its meetings.

The organization has been in existence since 1848. It has attempted to have its conventions in the fall. But at that season its members, most of whom are attached to university faculties, have just returned home from vacations and are unable or unwilling to go away again so soon. Early summer was found to be an equally inopportune time, because vacations either had begun or had been planned. During the Christmas holidays, however, the scientists were able to get away from their laboratories long enough to meet, and, further, they were more interested in their specialties than at any other season.

Scorpions are known to have starved for 365 days, and spiders have existed for 17 months without food.

The MILEAGE
SOMEONE ELSE WASTES

is SAVED FOR YOU TO USE

Because an automobile has served an owner faithfully and honestly for a couple of years does not imply that it should be cast aside.

Absolutely NOT.

Such cars when traded in, properly overhauled, and refinished, represent thousands of miles of service for someone.

A visit to the used car showroom of local dealers will convince you—

And just figure in cold dollars and cents that, because of lower first cost, the mileage you buy in a good used car is an economy—

NATIONAL CHAMBER WANTS TAX REMOVED ON EARNED INCOMES

Plan Calls for Distinction Between Income for Labor and Other Sources

Holding that a basic distinction is to be made between income earned by personal exertion and income from other sources, the Committee on Federal Taxation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has recommended to the joint congressional tax committee credit for all earned income be allowed regardless of the amount.

Notice of the recommendation has been received by the local chamber with the request that the body go on record as accepting that stand.

The committee holds that if both kinds of income are taxed at the same rate, the result is a discrimination against earned income. "An individual," it points out, "especially if he is entering a professional career, must spend a considerable amount of time and money in preparing himself for his life work. Earning capacity is limited at the most to the life of the individual and it may be sooner curtailed by ill health or numerous other events."

"The earning power of the individual cannot be passed on intact, but disappears with the life of its possessor. To put it in other words, an individual exhausts his personal capital as he carries on his work. Capital otherwise invested is different. Such capital is not ordinarily consumed in the productive processes nor exhausted with

PLAN OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY HERE

Representatives of patriotic organizations, the Grand Army of the Republic; Spanish War veterans and the American Legion and their auxiliaries will meet at 7:30 Monday evening at the city hall to make plans for Memorial day, May 30. George Dame, representing the legion, is secretary of the committee in charge of arrangements.

UNIVERSITY WANTS DATA ON FIRST ELECTRIC PLANT

Appleton's notoriety as being the home of the first hydro-electric plant has spread far and wide and the latest organization to start a history of that type of power is Columbia University, New York City. Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, has received a request from a member of the faculty asking that whatever data is available be sent him. The letter stated that it was only after a long investigation that Appleton was finally located as the home of the first hydro-electric plant.

the life of the individual, but can be passed on to a succeeding generation. For federal purposes, moreover, generous deductions are permitted for depletion, depreciation and obsolescence, none of these allowances being available to the individual in preparing his tax return."

"Most other countries," the committee points out "including Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Spain, allow relatively greater reductions than does this country."

Picturesque Citizens Of Jones Island Move Away

Milwaukee—The last of the Jones Island squatters are moving. Civic progress has halted legal battles over property rights and brought an end to Milwaukee's most picturesque settlement.

Most of the squatters went when the city built its sewage disposal plant on the island—which, incidentally, is now not an island but a point jutting out into lake Michigan. The city filled in the narrow strip of water that gave the island a right to its title. Then the city decided it needed the rest of the "island" for a ferry slip and ordered the few remaining "squatters" off.

The so-called squatters are fishermen living in shanties. The story is that the first of them came in 1870, after a terrific storm had swept away the few habitations which had been built on the "island." Then came Jake Muza. He took possession for the "House of Muza." This pioneer later gave pieces of property to his friends as they arrived here from Europe.

For 23 years, the Illinois Steel company and the squatters fought their legal battles. The company bought the land. But the squatters insisted that 20 years of residence under the Wisconsin law, coupled with the "House of Muza" tradition, gave them ownership of the land. Defeated in the lower court, the company's attorneys prepared to go to the supreme court. The city of Milwaukee, too, tried to move the squatters off by court action, but to no avail.

The litigation went from circuit court to supreme court and back again.

Then the city condemned the land for its sewage disposal plant and for other facilities. Most of the squatters moved off at once, but a few remained. The final order to move was given in March of this year. The last of the squatters are moving off, but reluctantly. They do not want to go to live in the more crowded districts of Milwaukee.

It was the "abdication of the king of Jones Island," Charles Plambeck, that resulted in most of the settlers moving off.

Mr. Plambeck, who ran a restaurant on "the island" for many years, was dubbed the "king" by his friends and he did have a large share in the administration of island affairs.

At one time Plambeck's fish dinners were so popular that excursions were run to his place. "Meet you on the island" used to be a common expression.

When the city condemned the island for the new sewage disposal

13 BADGERS GIVEN RED CROSS AWARDS

St. Louis—(AP)—Thirteen persons in Wisconsin have been granted honorable service awards for 1927 in the Red Cross senior life saving corps, mid-western Red Cross chapters here announced. Awards will be presented by the local Red Cross chapters.

The awards are made to members of the corps who have rendered at least 200 hours of volunteer service within two years. Extra service bars are added for each subsequent year, provided a minimum of 100 hours is contributed, three bars being the maximum award to any one individual. In addition to these, medal holders who effect a rescue in water are given what is known as a rescue bar.

plant, he moved to the mainland, where he died April 1, 1927.

The fishing still goes on; the same families which sent out their tugs from Jones Island send them out from the mainland now. They admit that it is "better for business on the mainland—easier to dispose of their cargoes. But they mourn the loss of their island habitation where happiness prevailed for many years.
